Hapax A.E. Stallings,2006-03-10 Recipient of the 2008 Poet’s Prize Recipient of the 2008 Benjamin H. Danks Award Hapax is ancient Greek for once, once only, once and for all, and onceness pervades this second book of poems by American expatriate poet A. E. Stallings. Opening with the jolt of Aftershocks, this book explores what does and does not survive its gone moment-childhood (The Dollhouse), ancient artifacts (Implements from the Grave of the Poet), a marriage's lost moments of happiness (Lovejoy Street). The poems also often compare the ancient world with the modern Greece where Stallings has lived for several years. Her musical lyrics cover a range of subjects from love and family to characters and themes derived from classical Greek sources (Actaeon and Sisyphus). Employing sonnets, couplets, blank verse, haiku, Sapphics, even a sequence of limericks, Stallings displays a seemingly effortless mastery of form. She makes these diverse forms seem new and relevant as modes for expressing intelligent thought as well as charged emotions and a sense of humor. The unique sensibility and linguistic freshness of her work has already marked her as an important, young poet coming into her own.

No Light from the Fires A.E. Bross,2023-04-14 What was once thought impossible has come to pass. A God-King is dead. In the wake of Tieran’s failed ascension, Tirzah, Green, and the rest of their companions are ready to put the nightmare of Kahral behind them. As the new co-leader of the Aru Si, Tirzah sets a path for the caravan to cross the deserts of Theia once again. This time, the thaumaturge has something she’s never had before: credible information that could lead to a long-awaited reunion with her eldest sister, Naomi. But the dangers of the waste are plentiful. Even if the Aru Si can survive the tribulations of the desert, Urizen—where Naomi was last seen—is a challenge unto itself. Word has escaped the city of God-King Bala-Rahzel’s erratic behavior, pitting the nobles against one another for her amusement. The Shadow Collective also lurks in the dark recesses of Urizen, carrying out their own agenda. Despite all of this, the secrets of Theia’s forgotten past, locked within the God-King’s volatile city, may prove the greatest trial of them all. Content Note: This work contains brief reference to torture, depictions of violence, blood, death and dying, drug use (both consensual and non), kidnapping, PTSD, and panic attacks. Please take care of yourself when reading.

Quest of the Sapphire A. E. Smith,2019-12-09 Marco, the son of Centurion Adan Longinus who crucified Jesus, leaves his family without a plan or resources. He hopes to accomplish something that will earn his father’s approval and make up for a dangerously bad decision. Marco immediately faces difficulties and is about to abandon his quest when a chance encounter with a street vender changes everything. Adan Longinus, along with his brother Nikolaus and other son Aquila, search for Marco. They encounter many perils, including a shipwreck, a haunting presence, a false arrest, and family members’ unforeseen situations. Long-hidden secrets are revealed as their search progresses and complications arise. They face hazards beyond their control as well as those of their own making. When they finally reunite, they discover that the greatest peril is about to unfold—the eruption of Mount Vesuvius. The family’s survival hangs in the balance. If you like mystery and adventure, told with historical accuracy, and an inspiring message, you’ll enjoy this series.
