#stayrelevant Amar M,Almabase,2017-09-08 Alumni Relations has taken some interesting new directions over the last decade but very little had been documented and published about this. But thanks to various organizations including CASE, Blackbaud and blog channels(Alumni Futures, Alumni Access) we now have a good place to start with. This book is our effort to contribute to this field of Alumni Relations and share our insights with the rest of the world. We are going to discuss a few of these trends and how they are shaping alumni engagement experiences. This comprehensive guide is full of insights, case-studies, and examples from our partner schools to help institutions at any level with their Alumni Relations program.

Alumni Relations Benchmarks, 2013 Edition Primary Research Group,2013 This 160-page report is based on a survey of 89 American colleges and universities and covers a broad range of issues of interest to alumni and advancement professionals including but not limited to: trends in staffing the alumni office, use of the alumni office's work time, alumni office budgets and priorities, governance of the alumni relations effort and level of cooperation among various administrative units and alumni organizations. The study provides highly detailed data on alumni participation rates in various kinds of alumni activities, including reunions, and a close look at alumni department budgets including salaries, travel, promotion, costs of alumni clubs and events. In addition, the report presents detailed data on alumni department revenues from credit card, insurance and other services for alumni, as well as alumni office spending on consulting and information services. Other areas covered include: means of fundraising from alumni, use of alumni surveys, percentage of alumni who attend various kinds of events and the percentage who give to the college, nature of links to alumni clubs, athletic booster clubs and other alumni-related organizations, use of direct mail, telephone solicitation, social media and email to connect with alumni, and the relative success of each method, the future of alumni publications and directories and many other issues of interest to college alumni and advancement staff of private alumni organizations and college departments that often deal with alumni such as advancement, marketing and athletics.

Alumni Relations John A. Feudo, 2010

Alumni Relations Gordy Taylor, Cathy Onion, 1998 This book is a how-to manual on creating an alumni relations program, including starting an alumni association. Brief sections address the following topics: defining purpose, launching the organization, establishing a membership policy, establishing a budget, writing a mission statement, creating a long-range plan, working with the development office, building the team, leading the team, maintaining records, tracking down lost alumni, staying in touch, structuring the board, and setting up programs. The bulk of the book consists of four appendices which provide the following resources: (1) sample mission statements, strategic and long-range plans, and goals and objectives; (2) sample organizational charts and job descriptions for the alumni office; (3) sample constitutions and bylaws for the alumni association; and (4) programming resources. (Contains 45 references.) (DB)

College Alumni Relations Benchmarks, 2007 This report gives critical data about the alumni relations efforts of North American colleges. In more than 115 pages and 400 tables present hard data on alumni affairs office budgets, marketing expenditures, use of print publications and the internet, directory building and fundraising activities, among other topics. The report, based on data from 60 colleges, gives the end user highly specific benchmarking data such as the percentage of alumni that participate in reunions, earning from insurance plans and credit cards offered to alumni, spending on promotional materials for alumni clubs, percentage of alumni for whom the college maintains a working email address, and hundreds of other useful benchmarks and datapoints. Useful benchmarks include alumni office staff size, staff time spent on specific tasks, impact of the internet on alumni communications, relations with the Office of Institutional Advancement, plans for the print directory and much much more. Data is broken out for public and private colleges and by size and type of college and by size of the overall alumni population.

Alumni Relations Benchmarks, 2014-15 Edition Primary Research

Group, 2014-07-07 The study presents detailed benchmarking data on alumni relations from 55 North American colleges. The 200+ page study covers fundraising and outreach strategies, alumni office staffing and budget trends, analysis of alumni affairs staff time use, use of social media and other marketing and outreach vehicles, relations with alumni clubs, spending on consulting, travel, telephone solicitation, and direct mail, and much much more. The report also gives highly specific data on participation rates in various kinds of alumni reunions and overall participation in the alumni association, among other data points. Data is broken out for public and private colleges, and by enrollment level, general Carnegie Class and annual tuition charged, to enable more precise benchmarking.

Columbia Alumni News , 1926

Handbook of Institutional Advancement A. Westley Rowland, 1986-05-27 Considered the reference on advancement... more than eighty percent of the material in this edition is new, including seventeen new chapters. --CASE Currents In fifty-nine new and revised chapters, this second edition provides up-to-date, comprehensive coverage of the entire field of institutional advancement. Gives guidelines for effective fund raising and enrollment management, explains how to develop and maintain constructive alumni relations, and how to produce attractive, quality publications and periodicals.

Surveying Your Alumni ,1983 A guide for conducting alumni surveys is presented, including 22 sample questionnaires. The first section on planning an effective survey strategy includes the following five articles: Let's Take a Survey (Cletis Pride); Surveying Your Alumni: Or an Unexamined College Is Not Worth Loving (Jocelyn Bartkevicius); Make Your Survey Scientific (James H. Frey); The Postman Rings Thrice: How to Survey Your Alumni through the Mail (H. Martin Moore); and Let Your Fingers Do the Walking: The Nine Steps of Surveying Alumni via Telephone (Robert D. Mills). Seven biographical questionnaire samples and 16 opinion questionnaire samples are provided, along with a selection of cover letters and followup correspondence. Finally, three articles are provided that address the challenge of presenting the survey results: CSPP Alumni: Where Are They Now? (Special Report, California School of Professional Psychology); Who Are the Alumni (Elise Hancock in Johns Hopkins Magazine); and The Shockley Report (in Vanderbilt Alumnus). Specific topics addressed in the guide include: the problems with many alumni surveys; using standard scientific sampling and research procedures; a timetable for planning mail surveys, and a comparison of face-to-face, mail, and telephone surveys. How to Work Effectively with Alumni Boards Patricia L. Alberger, 1981-01-01

Perspectives on working with alumni boards are presented in papers presented at a 1980 conference sponsored by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education. Papers and authors are as follows: Your Alumni: An Untapped Resource, Robert G. Forman; Involving your Alumni in the Total Alumni Program, Douglas Wilson; How the Board Can Put Alumni Talent to Work for You, Celia O. Goodale; The Role of the Alumni Board, Alfred M. Hallenbeck; How the Alumni Board Relates to Professional Staff; Jack Kinney; What the Alumni Executive Expects of Volunteers, Jack Kinney; What the Volunteer Expects of the Staff, Celia O. Goodale; Building a Better Board, Robert L. Gale; Getting the Right Person for the Job, Celia O. Goodale; Involving Other Alumni in Board Activities, Alfred M. Hallenbeck; How to Educate and Motivate Your Alumni Board, Douglas Wilson; Developing a Self-Evaluation Program for Alumni Board Members, Alan R. Shark; and Recognizing and Rewarding Your Board, Douglas Wilson. The important role that alumni professionals can undertake in such areas as providing advice concerning admission and graduation requirements, curriculum development, and the search for university officials; helping in student recruitment; and contributing to library and art activities is addressed. Other important areas that can involve alumni include: fund-raising, public relations, legislative or governmental relations at all levels, career services, and continuing education. Attention is also directed to organizing the alumni board's structure, enlisting the right people, orienting and involving new board members, developing leadership, and dealing with noncontributors. A sample Alumni Board Evaluation questionnaire is appended. (SW)
