Systems Engineering Analysis of AMCOM Program(s), 1999 The Systems Engineering and Production Directorate (SEPD), Research, Development and Engineering Center (RDEC) at the U.S. Army Aviation and Missile Command (AMCOM) has an engineering support contract with the University of Alabama in Huntsville. The scope of this contract provides for activities in systems engineering and manufacturing technology. The Industrial Operations Division (IOD), SEPD has the mission and function of providing technical management and engineering support as they relate to AMCOM supported weapon systems. This management and support ensures that programmatic and technical changes are incorporated only after a systematic technical evaluation and review of the total Impact and cost of the change is conducted. The systems engineering analysis evaluates the long term life cycle consequences of the change, to include impacts on the manufacturability, maintainability and supportability of the overall weapon system. In order to fulfill its mission, the IOD required programmatic and engineering support in analysis of the AMCOM systems.

Microelectronic Status Analysis and Secondary Part Procureability Assessment of the AMCOM Weapon System, 1999 The Industrial Operations Division (IOD), SEPD, RDEC, AMCOM has the mission and function of providing microelectronic technology assessments, and producibility and supportability analyses for AMCOM weapon systems. IOD required engineering support in performing microelectronic technology and availability assessments for several hundred items and in assessing the impact of nonavailability on AMCOM weapon systems. IOD also required engineering support in performing producibility analyses as well as spare and repair part obsolescence management during the Tech Loop review cycle. To facilitate the assessment of these systems. UAH was tasked to conduct an in-depth analysis as to the obsolescence of the AMCOM weapon system's component parts.

Manufacturing Technology Transfer Support, 1999 The Systems Engineering and Production Directorate (SEPD) has the mission and function of evaluating new technologies and determining the impacts of same on the producibility and supportability of AMCOM missile systems. The Manufacturing Science and Technology Division within SEPD is conducting research in several key product/process areas to support AMCOM systems. Engineering support was needed to transfer new product/process technologies to the industrial base for applications that reduce AMCOM systems cost and cycle time. AMCOM required engineering support in performing technology transfer of three specific technologies. The Systems Management and Production Laboratory at The University of Alabama in Huntsville (UAH) Research Institute (RI) was tasked to provide this engineering support and technology capability.

Abortion in Latin America and the Caribbean Ligia De Jesús Castaldi, 2020-06-25 Abortion in Latin America and the Caribbean is the first major book to analyze the abortion laws of the Latin American and Caribbean nations that are parties to the American Convention on Human Rights. Making use of a broad range of materials relating to human rights and abortion law not yet available in English, the first part of this book analyzes how Inter-American human rights bodies have interpreted the American Convention's prenatal right to life. The second part examines Article 4(1) of the American Convention, comparing and analyzing the laws regarding prenatal rights and abortion in all twenty-three nations that are parties to this treaty. Castaldi questions how Inter-American human rights bodies currently interpret Article 4(1). Against the predominant view, she argues that the purpose of this treaty is to grant legal protection of the unborn child from elective abortion that is broad and general, not merely exceptional. Abortion in Latin America and the Caribbean offers an objective analysis of national and international laws on abortion, proposing a new interpretation of the American Convention's right-to-life provision that is nonrestrictive and provides general protection for the unborn. The book will appeal not only to students and scholars in the field of international human rights but also to human rights advocates more generally.

War Reserve Analysis and Secondary Item Procureability Assessment of the AMCOM Supported Weapon Systems, 1999 The Industrial Operations Division (IOD), SEPD, RDEC, AMCOM has the mission and function of providing industrial base assessments, and producibility and supportability analyses for AMCOM weapon systems. IOD required engineering support in performing availability assessments for several hundred secondary items and in assessing the impact of nonavailability on AMCOM weapon systems. IOD also required engineering support in performing producibility analyses of the required secondary items. In order to facilitate the assessment of these systems, the Systems Management and Production Laboratory at The University of Alabama in Huntsville was tasked to conduct an in depth analysis as to the war reserve requirements of the AMCOM weapon system's component parts.

Diminishing Manufacturing Sources and Material Shortages Research and Support, 1999 The Industrial Operations Division (SEPD), Systems Engineering and Production Directorate (SEPD), AMCOM has the mission and function of providing microelectronic technology assessments, and producibility and supportability analyses for AMCOM weapon systems. IOD evaluates the impacts of nonavailability of microelectronic parts on the life cycle supportability of the AMCOM weapon systems and evaluates the producibility of AMCOM weapon systems. IOD required engineering support in performing microelectronic technology trend assessments for several AMCOM systems and in assessing the impact of nonavailability on those systems. The Systems Management and Production Laboratory at UAH was tasked to provide this engineering support and analytical capability.
