Nonstop Jen Vuhuong,2017-03-08 Today is the day for you to make a choice to reconnect with your purpose, passion, and infinitive resource of energy. I wrote this book once I felt struggled because of fighting between following my passion and my purpose. My family is a reason for me to live in life. Seeing my family and people around me work hard, life is a struggle for them; I desire to help people to make a difference in life. Once I define my passion is to become a personal development trainer, writer, and social entrepreneur, I quit the engineering job. I had to overcome my feeling of against my family expectation as an engineer, live a stable life. After months, I found I just made an excuse. I could not use my reason for living become a reason for stopping doing what I am doing. I wrote this book to express my thankful to my reason for living. The book is to reconnect with my purpose, my infinitive resource of energy. The book is to reconnect with your purpose, your passion, your infinitive resource of energy. This book is purely written from the memory of my childhood. In the continuous complex world, we often forget to feel appreciated little things. Little things matter. Appreciate little things, better yourself every day and often reconnect with your purpose, your infinitive sources of energy and passion. That make you live meaningfully, love completely, and give joyfully to achieve more. Every moment of life.

Tuning the Student Mind Molly Beauregard,2020-07-01 How can we rethink teaching practices to include and engage the whole student? What would student experience look like if we integrated silence and feeling with empirical analysis? Tuning the Student Mind is the story of one teacher's attempt to answer these questions by creating an innovative college course that marries the spiritual and the theoretical, integrating meditation and self-reflection with more conventional academic curriculum. The book follows Molly Beauregard and her students on their intellectual and spiritual journey over the course of a semester in her class, Consciousness, Creativity, and Identity. Interweaving personal stories, student writing, and Beauregard's responses, along with recommendations for further reading and a research appendix, it makes the case for the transformative power of consciousness-centered education. Written in a warm, engaging voice that reflects Beauregard's teaching style, Tuning the Student Mind provides an accessible, step-by-step template for other educators, while inviting readers more broadly to reconnect with the joy of learning in and beyond the classroom.

The Herland Trilogy: Moving the Mountain, Herland, With Her in Ourland (Utopian Classic) Charlotte Perkins Gilman,2015-04-01 This carefully crafted ebook: The Herland Trilogy: Moving the Mountain, Herland, With Her in Ourland (Utopian Classic) is formatted for your eReader with a functional and detailed table of contents. Moving the Mountain is a feminist utopian novel. The book was one element in the major wave of utopian and dystopian literature that marked the later nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Perkins sends a man forward in time to a better world, but gives him deep difficulties in adjusting to it. Herland describes an isolated society composed entirely of women who reproduce via parthenogenesis. The result is an ideal social order, free of war, conflict and domination. The story is told from the perspective of Van Jennings, a student of sociology who, along with two friends, Terry O. Nicholson and Jeff Margrave, forms an expedition party to explore an area of unchartered land where it is rumored lives a society consisting entirely of women. The three friends do not really believe the rumors as they are unable to conceive of how human reproduction could occur without males. The men speculate about what a society of women would be like, each guessing differently based on the stereotype of women which he holds most dear... With Her in Ourland draws a contrast between Gilman's idealized vision of a feminist society in Herland and the darker realities of real, outside, male-dominated world. Charlotte Perkins Gilman (1860-1935) was a prominent American feminist, sociologist, novelist, writer of short stories, poetry, and nonfiction, and a lecturer for social reform.
