Selima and the Merfolk Vanessa Salazar,2014-07-02 "She knew when to help and when to be invisible." When Selima mutually falls in love with Amarus, the fiancé of a beautiful mermaid, her life becomes a melting pot of love, lies and risk. The naiveté of Amarus and Selima convinces them that they could be together in secret. Weeks into their romance, they learn that their love affair is in jeopardy so they try to make a more permanent arrangement. However, all does not go as planned and Selima unintentionally encourages suspicions about the possibility of merfolk in Las Cuevas waters. Furthermore, her hovering stepmother has become somewhat obsessed with proving that merfolk are real and as time goes by, Selima has to create ridiculous explanations to hide her daily activities. She seeks help, while Amarus awaits their union. He is supportive in their plan, though there is not much he can do. Selima loves Amarus through all the sometimes discouraging circumstances. She hopes that he continues to love her because she is risking the trust of her father for them to be together. Eventually, they are helped but not in the way they requested and now they are left with a predicament that no one could have foreseen.

Bodies at Risk Robert Burns Nevelndine, 1998-01-29 Taking a fundamentally post-psychoanalytical approach, Bodies at Risk links philosophical and aesthetic issues in two distinct periods, with postmodernism continuing and amplifying the central concerns of Romanticism, including subject formation, the disruptive effects of the human body, and the unique forms of textuality they enable through risky personal and artistic conflicts. Nevelndine investigates how the body, designated as queer or otherwise, has placed itself at risk, such that it has questioned dominant notions of what it is to be a human subject in Western society, roughly since the time of the Romantics. Nevelndine also explores how certain kinds of artistic conflicts have played themselves out in various texts in the Romantic period and postmodernism and what these conflicts have produced, both corporeally and textually. From Wordsworth's poem Nutting to Gregg Araki's film The Living End, from the Marquis de Sade's prose to the autobiographical fiction of Thomas Bernhard, the artifact radically interrogates our notions of textuality, setting aside forever its status as a mere imitation or representation, and becomes a testimony to the body's ability to resist oppression and create new types of human being.
