Matchdays Ronald Reng, 2015-04-09 The enormous success of German football is envied around the world. The national team won the 2014 World Cup in style, while the Bundesliga offers an alternative model through its fan-friendly set-up, terraces and low ticket prices. In Matchdays: The Hidden Story of the Bundesliga, award-winning author Ronald Reng takes a unique approach to explain the history and peculiarities of German football. He follows the tracks of a journeyman footballer, Heinz Hoher, who has been in the Bundesliga all his life, from the first day of its existence in 1963 until now, as a player, manager, sports director and youth coach. We see through Hoher's story the wider picture of how German football, and even German society, developed from the ruins of the Nazi era to become the football and economic powerhouse of today. Born in 1939, Hoher became the small-town hero of Bayer 04 Leverkusen, a stylish winger and the first to let his hair grow like the Beatles. He witnessed the big match-fixing affairs of the seventies, fought in vain the temptations of so many managers - alcohol and gambling - and realised that, even at 75, his real addiction is still the game. Matchdays does for German football what David Winner's Brilliant Orange did for Dutch football.

The Bundesliga Blueprint Lee Price, 2015-08-10 German Football is on a roll: winners of the 2014 World Cup, club sides leading the way in Europe, a production line of superb talent coming through the system. Yet, fifteen years ago - at Euro 2000 - it was all so different. Germany suffered one of their most humiliating tournament exits as dismal performances saw them finish bottom of their group with just one point... Immediately, the German FA set about fixing things. And rather than fudging matters, they introduced a raft of major changes designed to return German football to its sporting pinnacle in just 10 years. In this entertaining, fascinating, and superbly-researched book, sportswriter Lee Price explores German football's 10-year plan. A plan that forced clubs to invest in youth, limit the number of foreign players in teams, build success without debt, and much more. The Bundesliga Blueprint details how German fans part-own and shape their clubs, how football is affordable, and the value of beer and a good sausage on match days. The book includes interviews from Michael Ballack, Jen Nowotny and Christoph Kramer, and the movers-and-shakers behind Germany's leading clubs including Schalke, Dortmund, and Paderborn. There is no doubt that German football is the envy of many nations. There is no doubt that, thanks to them, lessons should be learned by everyone else. About the Author. Lee Price is an award-nominated national print journalist and published sportswriter who is, and has always been, besotted with football. He used to compile player lists and notes on his arms, clothes, school books and bedroom walls. Now, he does similar for a living. Previously of Shoot! magazine, Lee has been a feature writer at The Sun since 2010, where he has interviewed various sporting greats - most memorably his original footballing hero, Eric Cantona, who was as aloof and enigmatic in a hotel lobby as he was on the pitch. And Lee was as infatuated. Other objects of his footballing affection include the English lower leagues, Germany's fan model, the faint possibility of an England World Cup win, and a good old-fashioned unlikely success story.

Fans, the Bundesliga and the Standing Room Debate. A study of the German Football Stadium Experience Pascal Adams, 2014-02-21 Thesis (M.A.) from the year 2013 in the subject Sport - Sport Economics, Sport Management, grade: B, University College Dublin, language: English, abstract: This study looks at the current issues surrounding football fan behaviour, more specifically the fan problems in German football stadiums. Removing the standing room areas to curb negative fan behaviour while upholding the fan culture is currently under debate. It is important to research this debate as the outcome will have a major impact on the future success of Germany's beloved football. This research analyses different areas of the fan experience including the dangers of Bengalos in the standing room areas, football and non-football fans' positive and negative opinions of the stadium experience, and possible solutions to protect the image of German Football. Using fan surveys from 100 respondents and analysing the quantitative data gives insight into the respondents' opinions on the standing room's importance as an integral part of the football experience. The results show that the Bundesliga has a successful product on the field and boasts a fan friendly environment which makes it a unique League in Europe. The consensus among the respondents is to protect this culture and find a sustainable solution to the stadium disturbances, which fits into the business model of the Bundesliga.

Germany's Bundesliga Karl Schmedders, Charlotte Snyder, Sophie Tinz, 2016

During one of the most nerve-wracking football matches of the 2012-2013 Bundesliga season, life-long friends Franz Dully and Max Vogel begin arguing about whether the wealth of a football club determines its success during the season. In order to disprove Vogel's claim that money scores goals, Dully must analyze the Bundesliga's current market values, points earned, and mid-season leader data. After analyzing the case, students will be able to compute prediction intervals, develop regression models, and interpret data. The development of the regression models asks students to choose the relevant set of independent variables, as well as determine an appropriate functional form for the regression equation. The models derived have to be evaluated as well as compared to one another. Further, the students have to interpret the quantitative findings in the context of the application.

Ticket Pricing within the German Bundesliga Sanja Beck, 2017-11-28 Seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject Business economics - Investment and Finance, grade: 1,7, Pforzheim University, language: English, abstract: This work aims to assess whether German Bundesliga clubs can use dynamic pricing as a profit enhancing pricing tool in the future. In Chapter 2, the reader will get an introduction to the German Bundesliga. The economic development of the German Bundesliga is presented and the current pricing system within the German Bundesliga will be analysed. At this point, the reader will be introduced into the different forms of price discrimination applied by the football clubs. Subsequently, the reader will be introduced to German football culture and, finally, ticket prices in connection with fan acceptance are pointed out. In Chapter 3, Revenue Management, better known in sports context as dynamic pricing, will be introduced as future ticket pricing strategy. The reader will get basic information about Revenue Management, its field of application as well as the general conditions for its successful application. Then, the opportunities and threats of dynamic pricing for football clubs with both high and low capacity utilisation will be analysed. Additionally, a numerical example concerning a possible revenue maximisation through dynamic pricing for Bayern Munich will be presented. The conclusion to chapter 4 will give an answer to the question of whether German Bundesliga clubs can use dynamic pricing as a profit enhancing pricing tool in the future as well as some recommendations for future research.

Restructuring Ticket Pricing Policies by Implementing Innovative Pricing Strategies for Bundesliga Clubs Alexander Rings, 2016-09-21 Master's Thesis from the year 2016 in the subject Business economics - Miscellaneous, grade: 1,0, Cologne Business School Köln, course: Preispolitik, language: English, abstract: For hundreds of years people have been highly affine to any kind of sports. Thousands of people regularly watch sports events online and offline and in society the topic of a team's or an individual's performance is always passionately discussed. Taking a look at Europe the most popular sport is football. Mughai (2016, p. 13) elaborates that football – or sometimes called soccer to avoid interchanging with American football – is globally ranked first in terms of popularity. Supporters that are very passionate about their team are visiting the huge football stadiums week by week. As the capacity of a stadium is limited sometimes fans are even purchasing their entrance tickets weeks or months ahead of the event itself. Especially the German Bundesliga has been facing an enormous interest growth within the last years resulting in an average of 42.609 visitors per match day making the league the most visited one in Europe. (DFL, 2015, p. 22f) Similar to the ever-growing popularity of sports, the costs are rising. This is caused by mounting player salaries, increased transfer fees and other operational expenses. (Drayer, Lee & Shapiro, 2012, p. 184; Breuer & Kemper, 2015, p. 142) Sport clubs therefore need to steadily open up and augment their sources of revenue: match day revenues, advertising, broadcasting, transfer fees and merchandising. (DFL, 2015, p. 26f) Some of these revenue streams can be actively influenced by the Bundesliga clubs whilst others are hard to affect. One of the determinants that can be modified is ticket pricing. The objective of this Master Thesis is to explain the prevailing pricing strategy in the German Bundesliga and to present innovative, value-based pricing approaches which can be tested. Creating an understanding of the fans' willingness to pay and factors having impact on the purchase decision making process, a gap in research is supposed to be filled. In this Master Thesis the author aims to find sufficient, relevant, reliable and empirically proven answers to the following research questions: 1) Why have innovative value-based pricing strategies like dynamic pricing not yet been implemented in the German Bundesliga? 2) To what extent are fans willing to pay different prices depending on dynamic factors? 3) What determinants need to be taken care of when changing the prevailing pricing strategies of Bundesliga clubs?

Using Social Media in Football Companies of the 1. Bundesliga Andreas Heiden, 2014-03-26 Research Paper (undergraduate) from the year 2011 in the subject Communications - Public Relations, Advertising, Marketing, Social Media, grade: 1,0, Academy for health and sport, language: English, abstract: Who thinks that football enterprises are only clubs is not right. Football clubs are even more big companies and its work has grown up. "Who thought that Bundesliga clubs only meet for a sporty competition should have a look into the companies register." (11 Freunde, P. 42, 2010) From the Bayern München AG to the St. Pauli Marketing GmbH, companies and professional trade have taken place in the Bundesliga. The question is why does the Bundesliga need social media and why is social media a good instrument in the football business? Football is probably the most popular sport in the world; about 174 million people in Europe are interested in it which makes about 71 percent. In Germany it is about 81 percent of the population. Because of this huge sympathy an economically coefficient grows out. (Comparative Sponsors, P. 32, 2009) Such loyal fans can bring more sales and the companies are not that forced to be successful in its sport. Football is also a European competition between clubs to get the best players, sponsors and the best sales. The clubs can influence the fans to buy more products or even attract new fans. A popular instrument to get attention and to get a better customer relationship is using the social media.

The German Bundesliga is the best football league in Europe Andreas Heiden, 2014-03-26 Essay from the year 2011 in the subject English - Miscellaneous, grade: 2,0, Academy for health and sport, language: English, abstract: The new season of the Bundesliga has started and in a few weeks the European challenges are going to start, the champions-league and the European league. The European competitions have a big standing in Europe and decide which team is the best in Europe. But it is quite difficult to compare the leagues and their teams, some are successful because of a rich owner and others have a good business situation. In the following essay I will give you the answer to the question why the German Bundesliga is the best football league in the world and why clubs and leagues in other European countries are in a financial quagmire. My facts to support the thesis are the financial situation of the European leagues, the fan situation in the stadiums, the plan of the Uefa to integrate the financial fair play and the future of the German Bundesliga.

Multisensory Impact of Sport Events Thorsten Tham, 2016-01-13 Thorsten Tham highlights the fundamental changes that have swept Germany's footballing landscape in recent years and presents theory-based impact hypotheses about forms of stimulus that can raise the loyalty of football-affine target groups before, during and after the game. Based on the example of traditional club VfL Bochum 1848 an online survey to analyze the influence of a Bundesliga match on different visitor target groups is conducted. The author discusses ways in which football clubs can change their multisensual approach to raise the profile of their club brand among football-affine target groups and increase loyalty to the club.
