Xuzhou Construction Machinery Group Xiaoming Zheng, Ziqian Zhao, Yirong Guo, 2020 XCMG was a leading construction machinery manufacturer in China, competing in a highly competitive international market. This case describes XCMG's chairperson Wang Min's role in the company over several stages of development. In the late 1990's, he eliminated corruption among XCMG's management personnel, pushed for the consolidation of dozens of unprofitable affiliates, and led the group through a period of turmoil into high growth. In the early 2000's, he actively sought a capital injection to power XCMG's next stage of growth. In a period of market downturn after 2011, his determination to stay in the construction machinery business reassured employees at XCMG and boosted their morale. In the following years, he steered the company towards two new strategic goals--internationalization and digitalization. This case provides students with an example of a long-serving leader who has exerted significant personal influence over his organization, and has played different roles in the highs and lows of the company. It is suitable for a discussion of how a leader's vision and values can impact the strategic goals of the company and its corporate values. The open-ended topic of this case is--What should a company do to pass on its corporate culture and spirit to the next generation of leaders, especially when the company is developing rapidly or experiencing dramatic changes in its business environment?

This International Conference is held in the circumstance of international economic crisis and domestic industrial structure adjustment. In the past year, sales market of construction machinery has been subjected to a certain shocks, and the enterprises have en countered a certain difficulties. For the future, however, I believe that such difficulties are temporary, and the prospect is bright. The construction machinery is to serve the mining and state infrastructure construction, and for China, along with most countries in the world which are developing countries, the infrastructure construction is still a significant part in the course of development, and the sound infrastructure will promote the development of their economies, even these countries which are in the leading position in economy development also attach great importance to the improvement of infrastructure. Therefore, construction machinery is indispensable and has a rigid demand. Currently, the international competition has not been only limited to terrestrial, since the possession of terrestrial was a foregone conclusion, but there will be more

Economic Lessons from China's Forty Years of Reform and Opening-up David Daokui Li, 2021-03-26
This book first shows that the past 40 years of China's economic reform and opening up represents the greatest magnitude of economic growth in history. Based on field trips, extensive and intensive interviews and literature surveys, this book argues that there are five general lessons for a rapid growing economy from China's economic reform and opening up, all in the area of the relationship between the government and the economy. First, the local governments need to be incentivized to help rapid entry and development of enterprises. Second, local governments need to be incentivized to help rapid land conversion from agricultural to non-agricultural. Third, financial deepening is vital; that is, inducing households to hold more and more financial assets in local currency. Financial deepening is essential to convert savings into investments. This requires financial stability, which is crucial. Fourth, the learning through opening up is the key to endogenous economic growth. The fundamental benefit of opening up is learning rather than enjoying comparative advantage. The fifth and final lesson from China is that the central government must proactively manage the macroeconomy. The rationale is that enterprises compete with each other in games of industrial organization. In order to resolve this problem, proactive measures including market-oriented means, administrative orders and reform measures should be implemented. Overall, the main lesson from China's past 40 years of reform and opening up is that proper incentives and behavior of the government, local and central, are important for economic growth. China has been conducting reforms in this regard and as a result, the government more or less has been playing the role of a helping hand regarding economic growth, although China's economic system is far from perfect and many reforms are still needed.
