Android Apps for the Drunk Harold N. Malt,Winston Sauer,Scott Scotch,2012-08-10 As alcohol connoisseurs and Android aficionados both, we felt the world was long overdue for a book targeted at what we know to be a large and growing market: people with smartphones who like to get blitzed. The collection of apps we've compiled is a testament to drunken debauchery in the age of smartphones and tablet computers, for despite the introduction of these world-changing devices into our lives, the requisites of the boozers among us have changed little. Song, sport, and passionate expression have long been keystones of the mind of the drunken reveler, and we're confident that our ebook contains apps that would excite Dionysians of the past just as much as it will delight today's intoxicated Android users. This book contains real stories, real jokes, and real profanity - so don't buy it if you can't handle it.

Ireland and Transatlantic Poetics Brian Caraher,Robert Mahony,2007 Transatlantic poetics is the principal theme and the constructive burden of these essays. The motive toward its articulation lies in the demand for cross-national, international, and post-nationalist comprehension of cultural relations and critical practices across modern Anglophone British, Irish, and North American literary developments, literary filiations, and literary history. Anglophone literary study needs to articulate ever more clearly the poetics of literary practices, including the cultural politics of literary histories and literary reading. Ireland is a small island, yet its finest writers have insistently articulated its modern culture within a transatlantic neighborhood stretching from continental Europe across the British and Irish archipelago to the western reaches of North America. Modern Dublin is a cultural location for constructing transatlantic literary relations and poetics. This collection foregrounds modern Dublin, its writers, its universities, its literary journals, its teachers, and critics of English Studies, as well as the contested critical construction of regional and international poetics and cultural politics that emerges from the often tense interaction of local and global literary practices and critical desires.
