Neon Lovers Glow in the Dark Lili Lakich,1986 One of a rare breed of artist - the neon artist, whose canvas is the night illuminated by a magic crayon of brilliant and sinuous, liquid light - Lili Lakich is also the founder and director of the world's only museum dedicated to this extraordinary art form, the Museum of Neon Art in Los Angeles. Lakich's own neon sculptures, created over a period of twenty years, have brought expressiveness to a medium sometimes considered cold and commercial. Often highly charged with emotion and monumental in size, they are like jewels salvaged from the modern world, transformed into icons of glistening beauty made all the more startling by their garnish origins.--BOOK COVER.

Materials, Practices, and Politics of Shine in Modern Art and Popular Culture Antje Krause-Wahl,Petra Löffler,Änne Söll,2021-06-03 Shine allures and awakens desire. As a phenomenon of perception shiny things and materials fascinate and tantalize. They are a formative element of material culture, promising luxury, social distinction and the hope of limitless experience and excess. Since the early twentieth century the mass production, dissemination and popularization of synthetic materials that produce heretofore-unknown effects of shine have increased. At the same time, shine is subjectified as “glamor” and made into a token of performative self-empowerment. The volume illuminates genealogical as well as systematic relationships between material phenomena of shine and cultural-philosophical concepts of appearance, illusion, distraction and glare in bringing together renowned scholars from various disciplines.

Kaleidoscope of Light: 2014 Robert Calkins,2015-05-26 This book contains 89 full color abstract art works of a unique award winning form. Each page has a kaleidoscope form of an abstract art work. Robert's art begins with sun light. Sun light is the source of energy that powers all life on earth. It represents the vitality and exuberance of life itself. His art attempts to capture that exuberance and its variety. Using an array of equilateral glass prisms, he creates the rich color that characterizes his work. By adjusting the individual prisms in the array, he mixes additional color combinations beyond the normal rainbow of a single prism. Then, he use lens, filters, reflections, foam board, glue, paint, overhead transparencies and other objects to create various light affects and takes digital photographs of the results. Finally, he uses a computer to manipulate the images (such as crop, cut, paste, etc.) to create the final art piece. He classifies his art as mostly non-representational abstract mixed media. He developed his process and tools over a number of years of experimentation.

The book's three major themes - Spiritual Expressions, Shared Concerns, and Historical Perspectives - are discussed in an insightful introductory essay by Jacquelyn Days Serwer, chief curator at the National Museum of American Art. Building on these themes, brief essays on each of the artists by Serwer and other members of the NMAA curatorial staff illuminate the chosen works in the context of the careers of these artists. Forty-one of their paintings, sculptures, and installations are illustrated in color, supplemented by eighty-six black-and-white reproductions.

Glow, Not Gold Lucie Chan,Barry Dupe,Libby Hague,2013 Glow, not Gold, inspired by the expression All that glitters is not gold is an artist book produced by the Centre for Art Tapes and Conundrum Press on the artistic practices of Lucie Chan (Toronto), Barry Doupé (Vancouver), and Libby Hague (Toronto). The book also invites two animation artists and critical writers: James MacSwain and Steve Reinke who write on the relationship of animated moving image practices within the visual art exhibition. Chan, Doupé and Hague utilize digital media in tandem with a visual art practice, and use drawing, paper, and installation design, pointing to the tactility of their materials as process for creation. A somewhat underrepresented field in contemporary art, animation has not seen a great deal of theory-based writing that aims to disambiguate the various techniques and address artwork that reaches beyond the animation of a video, to spill into the gallery space with the purpose of the immersive experience. Lucie Chan unpacks complicated and intimate relationships with watercolor drawings that are also transposed to delicate animations, and show emotional depth with meditative presence. Barry Doupé's animations are saturated with layers of color and digitally drawn characters. Inspired by a dream state or the subconscious the artist carefully builds a narrative at a quiet pace. Libby Hague constructs paper and video installations approaching trauma and suffering when living in a precarious world, and allows vulnerability to enter through text and poetry.
