Placer Mining for Gold in California (Classic Reprint) Charles Volney Averill, 2017-10-11 Excerpt from Placer Mining for Gold in California The increase in the price of gold from in 1932 to in 1933 and to in 1934 made such stories seem even more plausible and helped further to stimulate the migration of men to the creeks, despite the unfortunate experiences related by most of those drifting back from the gold-bearing areas. Stories of those who succeeded in making a living and of the very few who made strikes continued to be magnified out of all proportion, both in passing from mouth to mouth and in the press, and brought new recruits to the streams as late as 1937. It is obvious to those versed in gold mining that the facts are greatly exaggerated in these stories. To the hard-pressed unemployed, however, these accounts sounded like the answer to their need. How could they know that for every one who made a strike in placer mining, tens of thousands would find little or nothing, that not more than a few score at most could possibly expect to develop a profitable lode mine, and that large amounts of capital would be required for most of these mines? The experience of the thousands who are unsuccessful in placer mining does not make news; the story of the man here and there who is lucky does. Most of the accounts were stories of success, stories which were news but which were misleading to the unemployed. An Alaskan Gold Mine Leland Carlson, 2015-08-01 An Alaskan Gold Mine: The Story of No. 9 Above is a notable and tragic story of the discovery of Alaska gold in 1898. The mine had so many implications for leaders and institutions of the Evangelical Covenant Church, a tangled and contested case of ownership extending over two decades that went to the Supreme Court of the United States on four occasions. Visiting Alaska three times doing meticulous research into legal proceedings and conducting oral interviews, Carlson succeeded in crafting a compelling narrative of gold, grief, and greed. An Alaskan Gold Mine: The Story of No. 9 Above remains a classic case study of the Alaska gold rush as a whole, as well as the particular context of issues and personalities unique to the bonanza claim staked by a Covenant missionary on Anvil Creek above the boomtown Nome.

Now there are frequent strikes, not only in South Africa, but in many of our Western States. The opening up of Cripple Creek, whose output this year will be in the neighborhood of is one of the marvels of the times. But there have been no great placer finds in recent years equalling those in Alaska and the Klondike, and it is the ease with which the gold is obtained that has attracted so many thousands to the beaches and creeks of the far Northwest. All About the Klondyke Gold Mines (Classic Reprint) J. Armoy Knox, 2015-07-20 Excerpt from All About the Klondyke Gold Mines Sitka appears at the southeast corner of this map, and northeast of it is Juneau, the usual fitting out place for miners going to the Yukon. The arrows show the route of miners bound for the Yukon. Steamboats can carry them from Juneau as far as Ty-a. Then they must pack their loads through Chilkoot Pass and boat them through a chain of lakes and down the Lewis River to the Yukon. It is about 700 miles from Juneau to the Klondyke River. The two other most important centres of Yukon mining were Forty Mile Creek, where there were two big mining camps, Forty Mile and Fort Cudahy, and Circle City. All these camps have now been practically deserted in the great rush for the Klondyke. The ever reliable and always trustworthy New York Sun publishes the map as given above. The Gold Mines of the Rand Frederick H. Hatch, 2017-10-12 Excerpt from The Gold Mines of the Rand: Being a Description of the Mining Industry of Witwatersrand, South Republic The township of Johannesburg was marked off towards the end of 1886. The first sale of building sites took place in December 1886, and realised prices ranging from a few shillings to £200. The first mill of any size was a 30-head Frazer and Chalmers battery, erected early in the year 1887 for the Transvaal Gold Mining Company. Coal was discovered in December 1887 at Boksburg in the near neighbourhood of the diggings, and this discovery led to the opening of several collieries (Brakpan, Springs, Olifants River, There is no doubt that the prosperity of the Rand Gold Fields is in a measure due to the fortunate accessibility of abundant and, consequently, cheap fuel.
