Grand Junction Maurice G. Dantec,2009-09-29 Visionary, gripping, sumptuous and tantalizing, Grande Junction is a masterwork of hip, literary science fiction. On October 4, 2057, most electronic devices on Earth are infected and destroyed by unknown viruses, and billions of people dependent on machine interfaces are killed as a result. Twelve years later, the survivors are sunk in a new Dark Age, a grim afterworld in which the only law is the law of the jungle. In the sprawling ruins of Grande Junction, a thriving urban community centered on an abandoned spaceport, civilization is hanging on by its fingernails. In this last fragile outpost of knowledge and reason, hope and faith, a second wave of lethal viruses is unleashed—viruses that attack human beings directly, stripping away language, thought, humanity itself. But it is also here that a young boy, a guitar-playing prodigy named Link de Nova, discovers within himself the power to fight a malevolent entity determined to remake the world in its own bleak image. Now, as the viruses spread and enemies converge on Grande Junction, Link and his friends and protectors, Chrysler Campbell and Yuri McCoy, prepare to fight for the survival of the human race with rifles, radios, and rock 'n' roll.

The Bronzes of Grand Junction Richard Paul Haight,2002-12 The Bronzes of Grand Junction is a verse drama in twelve scenes. It is suitable for full scale theatrical production, or minimal production, or readers' theater presentation (à la Under Milkwood, or pageant production (everyone in town plays a role). The players include a Narrator and six men and six women of any combination of ages, race, ethnicity, and body build. These 12 players each play/read many characters. The Bronzes of Grand Junction are—were—ordinary people going about their ordinary lives on an ordinary day when suddenly, instantly bronzed, like baby shoes, bestatued right in from of reliable eyewitnesses. They are a women with shopping bags, a businessman, a homeless man, a pretty girl, and a running child. The cause of this miracle is unknown and, as it turns out, unknowable. Could be the work of God, aliens, an artist, a magician, or a scientist putting an odd spin on genetics. The effect on the town of this phenomenon is far-reaching but not particularly profound. Local quarrel over whether the bronzes deserve a decent burial or should serve as a tourist attraction (of vast commercial benefit to the town, or someone). Visitors overrun the site where the bronzes sit and stand. Tourists arrive by the busload. Blue-collar folk, scientists, religious persons, cranks, poets, researchers, professors, and teenagers speculate about the cause of the phenomenon and weave fantasias about who the bronzed ones were and why them. The bronzes give the world something to talk about and are the focus, therefore, of a wide range of speculation, personal projections, contentious opinions, and even a few thoughtful, compassionate responses. The responses are usually off-base as far as the actual lives of those bronzed, but would that not be expected? The effect of all these responses is an extended colloquy by (mostly) Americans (mostly) about themselves and their culture. That The Bronzes of Grand Junction is a verse drama should not alarm or put off those who have a negative attitude about poetry. The play reads, and will strike the ear, as almost normal speech. The author uses rhyme to inspire better language than he can ordinarily muster, and he likes rhythm. Here are a couple of examples, first Abraham Falling Blue Father speaking about the woman with shopping bags: Oh cruel white-man fate! She is searching in a Target sack of heartless plastic for the answer to her every prayer, but she can search in those wishbags forever, and not find the answer even to wrinkles or vaginal dryness, let alone flat affect or unhappiness or anything serious. THIRD WOMAN FROM CAMBRIDGE And the inexorable spin of this, our bicycle in space, makes us upright even when we're upside down, and for a few turns warms our faces with the light of dawn, and says, to me at least, lucky you, you get to try again.

A Valley So Grand ... Robert W. McLeod,2016-01-22 The community of Grand Junction, Colorado, began in 1881 following the deportation of most of the state's western Ute Indian tribes to the Uintah Indian Reservation in the Utah Territory. After Lo (the poor Indian) was forcibly removed, white men could not populate the vicinity fast enough. What was once the exclusive domain of the Ute was rapidly usurped by toilers of the tiller's trade. The vast expanses of Gunnison County were divided into Mesa, Delta and Montrose counties. Conditions in the newly founded town of Grand Junction were Spartan, to say the least, but within 30 years the community was as cosmopolitan as any in America. Irrigation canals were constructed and the desert bloomed in profusion until Mesa County became nearly the finest agricultural-producing locality in the country. The whole story is here-from horse blanket-doored hovels to the multi-story Grand Valley National Bank, streetcars and automobiles. Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear . . .
