Distributed Source Coding Shuang Wang,Yong Fang,Samuel Cheng,2017-03-20 Distributed source coding is one of the key enablers for efficient cooperative communication. The potential applications range from wireless sensor networks, ad-hoc networks, and surveillance networks, to robust low-complexity video coding, stereo/Multiview video coding, HDTV, hyper-spectral and multispectral imaging, and biometrics. The book is divided into three sections: theory, algorithms, and applications. Part one covers the background of information theory with an emphasis on DSC; part two discusses designs of algorithmic solutions for DSC problems, covering the three most important DSC problems: Slepian-Wolf, Wyner-Ziv, and MT source coding; and part three is dedicated to a variety of potential DSC applications. Key features: Clear explanation of distributed source coding theory and algorithms including both lossless and lossy designs. Rich applications of distributed source coding, which covers multimedia communication and data security applications. Self-contained content for beginners from basic information theory to practical code implementation. The book provides fundamental knowledge for engineers and computer scientists to access the topic of distributed source coding. It is also suitable for senior undergraduate and first year graduate students in electrical engineering; computer engineering; signal processing; image/video processing; and information theory and communications.

Computational Science -- ICCS 2005 V.S. Sunderam,G. Dick van Albada,Peter M.A. Sloot,J. J. Dongarra,2007-05-22 The Fifth International Conference on Computational Science (ICCS 2005) held in Atlanta, Georgia, USA, May 22-25, 2005, continued in the tradition of previous conferences in the series: ICCS 2004 in Krakow, Poland; ICCS 2003 held simultaneously at two locations, in Melbourne, Australia and St. Petersburg, Russia; ICCS 2002 in Amsterdam, The Netherlands; and ICCS 2001 in San Francisco, California, USA. Computational science is rapidly maturing as a mainstream discipline. It is central to an ever-expanding variety of fields in which computational methods and tools enable new discoveries with greater accuracy and speed. ICCS 2005 was organized as a forum for scientists from the core disciplines of computational science and numerous application areas to discuss and exchange ideas, results, and future directions. ICCS participants included researchers from many application domains, including those interested in advanced computational methods for physics, chemistry, life sciences, engineering, economics and finance, arts and humanities, as well as computer system vendors and software developers. The primary objectives of this conference were to discuss problems and solutions in all areas, to identify new issues, to shape future directions of research, and to help users apply various advanced computational techniques. The event highlighted recent developments in algorithms, computational kernels, next generation computing systems, tools, advanced numerical methods, data-driven systems, and emerging application fields, such as complex systems, finance, bioinformatics, computational aspects of wireless and mobile networks, graphics, and hybrid computation.

Proceedings James A. Storer,1996 Sixty-two technical presentations and 42 poster sessions comprise the April 1996 conference proceedings distinguished by its high level of expertise. A sampling of subject matter indicates the professional level of this conference: symmetric trellis coded vector quantization, lossless compression of grayscale images via context tree weighting, pattern based compression of text images, and optimal bit allocation for biorthogonal wavelet coding. Includes color photographs, equations, and graphs. Lacks an index. Annotation copyright by Book News, Inc., Portland, OR.
