Interdisciplinary Teaching About Earth and the Environment for a Sustainable Future David C. Gosselin,Anne E. Egger,J. John Taber,2018-12-13 Interdisciplinary Teaching about the Earth and Environment for a Sustainable Future presents the outcomes of the InTeGrate project, a community effort funded by the National Science Foundation to improve Earth literacy and build a workforce prepared to tackle environmental and resource issues. The InTeGrate community is built around the shared goal of supporting interdisciplinary learning about Earth across the undergraduate curriculum, focusing on the grand challenges facing society and the important role that the geosciences play in addressing these grand challenges. The chapters in this book explicitly illustrate the intimate relationship between geoscience and sustainability that is often opaque to students. The authors of these chapters are faculty members, administrators, program directors, and researchers from institutions across the country who have collectively envisioned, implemented, and evaluated effective change in their classrooms, programs, institutions, and beyond. This book provides guidance to anyone interested in implementing change—on scales ranging from a single course to an entire program—by infusing sustainability across the curriculum, broadening access to Earth and environmental sciences, and assessing the impacts of those changes.

Statewide Interest and Significance Stephen L. Taber,Randall Pozdena,1976

Salvaging Democracy Jay Taber,2003-06-23 Salvaging Democracy is a carefully distilled and structured examination of who we are and what we stand for. These selected works—by someone who spent many years on the frontlines of domestic political conflict—expose the systematic betrayal of our ideals and how this betrayal might realistically be overcome. It is a timely and important work—a sling of arrows for the war of ideas. These two theses and four essays on America integrate into a coherent and meaningful whole an understanding of how the birthplace of modern democracy became such a mess. Incorporating the insights of America's top thinkers on the topic, the author provides both scholars and ordinary citizens with essential tools and analysis required for effective engagement. Building on our core values, this discussion by some of our keenest minds makes clear the methods to be used to enable all concerned to become producers rather than consumers of the democratic process.

The Rationalizing Voter Milton Lodge,Charles S. Taber,2013 Political behavior is the result of innumerable unnoticed forces and conscious deliberation is often a rationalization of automatically triggered feelings and thoughts. Citizens are very sensitive to environmental contextual factors such as the title 'President' preceding 'Obama' in a newspaper headline, upbeat music or patriotic symbols accompanying a campaign ad, or question wording and order in a survey, all of which have their greatest influence when citizens are unaware. This book develops and tests a dual-process theory of political beliefs, attitudes and behavior, claiming that all thinking, feeling, reasoning and doing have an automatic component as well as a conscious deliberative component. The authors are especially interested in the impact of automatic feelings on political judgments and evaluations. This research is based on laboratory experiments, which allow the testing of five basic hypotheses: hot cognition, automaticity, affect transfer, affect contagion and motivated reasoning.
