It has two parts: the planner side, which is meant to help you organize your week while always keeping your intentions at the top of your mind. At the beginning of each week, review your intentions and make some notes about affirmations you're going to use. Incorporate these into your visualization or meditation about the goal you're working on. This will help you to keep your mind focused on what you WANT, rather than getting caught up and reacting to what is going on in your current reality. Make notes during the week in the Notes section about what is working and not working. The vision board side of the planner is more of a free-form space, where will put sketches, photos, notes, inspirations you tear out of magazines, or whatever visual stimulus that keeps your mind focused on the reality you are in the process of manifesting.
