Invisible Users Jenna Burrell,2012-05-04 An account of how young people in Ghana's capital city adopt and adapt digital technology in the margins of the global economy. The urban youth frequenting the Internet cafés of Accra, Ghana, who are decidedly not members of their country's elite, use the Internet largely as a way to orchestrate encounters across distance and amass foreign ties—activities once limited to the wealthy, university-educated classes. The Internet, accessed on second-hand computers (castoffs from the United States and Europe), has become for these youths a means of enacting a more cosmopolitan self. In Invisible Users, Jenna Burrell offers a richly observed account of how these Internet enthusiasts have adopted, and adapted to their own priorities, a technological system that was not designed with them in mind. Burrell describes the material space of the urban Internet café and the virtual space of push and pull between young Ghanaians and the foreigners they encounter online; the region's famous 419 scam strategies and the rumors of “big gains” that fuel them; the influential role of churches and theories about how the supernatural operates through the network; and development rhetoric about digital technologies and the future viability of African Internet cafés in the region. Burrell, integrating concepts from science and technology studies and African studies with empirical findings from her own field work in Ghana, captures the interpretive flexibility of technology by users in the margins but also highlights how their invisibility puts limits on their full inclusion into a global network society.

My Online Dates Mulatwa Mosisa,2012-03-05 My online date from German is a middle aged man. I didn't know why he wanted to date me. He introduced himself as a young man first. The next day, he asked me if I like him. I told him he was a good guy. “Will you hate me if I tell you something?” asked Gunter. “I won't.” I said. “I'm not a young man as I told you I'm sixty four." I was shocked but pretended as if I was not surprised. "It's okay." "You don't hate me if I invite you my webcam and show you how old I am? Please don't sign out when you see me." "I won't. Don't worry." He sends the invite, and I accepted him and saw a very older man with bushy face and chest. He could be my grandfather; I wanted to know more about him. What does he want to do with me? I can't tell how I was embarrassed to see his face on the cam. Unless he wants to adopt me as a granddaughter, he has no purpose to chase a girl of my age. Anyway, I let him finish his talk.
