Duma Key Stephen King,2023-08-22 Master storyteller Stephen King's classic, terrifying #1 New York Times bestseller of what happens when the barrier between our world and that of the supernatural is breached. After a terrible construction site accident severs Edgar Freemantle's right arm, scrambles his mind, and implodes his marriage, the wealthy Minnesota builder faces the ordeal of rehabilitation, all alone and full of rage. Renting a house on Duma Key—a stunningly beautiful and eerily undeveloped splinter off the Florida coast—Edgar slowly emerges from his prison of pain to bond with Elizabeth Eastlake, a sick, elderly woman whose roots are tangled deep in this place. And as he heals, he paints—feverishly, compulsively, his exploding talent both a wonder and a weapon. For Edgar's creations are not just paintings, but portals for the ghosts of Elizabeth's past...and their power cannot be controlled...

Key Readings in Journalism Elliot King, Jane Chapman, 2012-11-12 Key Readings in Journalism brings together over thirty essential writings that every student of journalism should know. Designed as a primary text for undergraduate students, each reading was carefully chosen in response to extensive surveys from educators reflecting on the needs of today's journalism classroom. Readings range from critical and historical studies of journalism, such as Walter Lippmann's Public Opinion and Michael Schudson's Discovering the News, to examples of classic reporting, such as Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward's All the President's Men. They are supplemented by additional readings to broaden the volume's scope in every dimension, including gender, race, and nationality. The volume is arranged thematically to enable students to think deeply and broadly about journalism—its development, its practice, its key individuals and institutions, its social impact, and its future—and section introductions and headnotes precede each reading to provide context and key points for discussion.

House Key Rosa DeBerry King, 2014-07-21 Young, inner-city teacher, Jordan DuBois, wants a second chance at her career. She abandons Boston for a new opportunity in Virginia, but instead of finding respite, Jordan discovers that the house she rents on a former plantation has secrets of its own. Shrouded in magic, its dormant ancestral memories come alive when she gets too close to its heir, Santiago MacRae. Rules fly out the window when an irrepressible force brings the unlikely pair together. Santi, however, also has secrets that could destroy any chance at a future with Jordan. But the past swoops down on them as Jordan picks up frequencies from the plantation's earlier inhabitants. Far from old crones, the ancestors Jordan befriends are vibrant young women who immerse her in their parallel tales of struggle, love, and survival. They accompany Jordan on her journey to find her true identity. Santi, meanwhile, has a chance to escape painful family memories and trade the farm for a future of fame. That is, until meeting Jordan makes him choose between fleeing or facing his legacy. But neither option appeals to Santi's avaricious benefactress who has built her career by capitalizing upon his and has other plans beyond the scope of his contract. Obsessed, she comes unhinged when she learns about Jordan, who failed to mention some secrets herself. When the cocoon of deceit in which Jordan and Santi wrap themselves unravels, chaos ensues. Together, they must face their mistakes as the house unveils its mysteries and reveals clues to an ancient prophesy. Locked in a hidden library, its message may be their only chance at saving one another and the place they love. They must reach into the past to face the future; to save a plantation doomed for demolition. Together, they learn about love, forgiveness, and the enduring, sacred spirit of the place that is home. House Key is about an old house in new times, about new adults in old love, about traditions and taboos. It is the first book in a trilogy of novels spanning centuries and the lives of families that share extraordinary experiences.
