Liars Cass R. Sunstein, 2021-02-04 A powerful analysis of why lies and falsehoods spread so rapidly now, and how we can reform our laws and policies regarding speech to alleviate the problem. Lying has been with us from time immemorial. Yet today is different-and in many respects worse. All over the world, people are circulating damaging lies, and these falsehoods are amplified as never before through powerful social media platforms that reach billions. Liars are saying that COVID-19 is a hoax. They are claiming that vaccines cause autism. They are lying about public officials and about people who aspire to high office. They are lying about their friends and neighbors. They are trying to sell products on the basis of untruths. Unfriendly governments, including Russia, are circulating lies in order to destabilize other nations, including the United Kingdom and the United States. In the face of those problems, the renowned legal scholar Cass Sunstein probes the fundamental question of how we can deter lies while also protecting freedom of speech. To be sure, we cannot eliminate lying, nor should we try to do so. Sunstein shows why free societies must generally allow falsehoods and lies, which cannot and should not be excised from democratic debate. A main reason is that we cannot trust governments to make unbiased judgments about what counts as fake news. However, governments should have the power to regulate specific kinds of falsehoods: those that genuinely endanger health, safety, and the capacity of the public to govern itself. Sunstein also suggests that private institutions, such as Facebook and Twitter, have a great deal of room to stop the spread of falsehoods, and they should be exercising their authority far more than they are now doing. As Sunstein contends, we are allowing far too many lies, including those that both threaten public health and undermine the foundations of democracy itself.

Court Uncourt - STA Law Firm STA Law

Firm, 2018-01-09 We live in a time ravaged by the use of the Internet. Pluck a man out from a past century and drop him onto our planet, it would not be long before he would be amazed, or horrified, by thing we call the internet and what it has enabled us to do. The trade of goods was traditionally done by a hand-to-hand exchange, in which case, if any problem were to arise on the quality of the good or the amount paid, one could instantly manage it with the other party, face-to-face. The problem we face today is that in light of the online purchases we undertake, disputes over the state of the goods received entail complications in ascertaining who is to be held liable. In the United Kingdom, legislation has been introduced to regulate these modernday scenarios. Sales of goods are covered by the Sale of Goods Act 1979. The Act will only apply when the buyer has not seen the products that have been purchased, and have proceeded with the sale based on the reasonable contemplation of the parties about how the item was portrayed to look. In this issue of Court Uncourt, our lawyers will explain a broad range of legal matters ranging from the bankruptcy code in the United Arab Emirates to the distinction between tax avoidance and tax evasion. Through this information outlet, we intend to keep our readers updated on the latest legal developments around the world. We wish you an enlightening read of this issue of Court Uncourt and a Happy New Year!

This guide specifically focuses on matters that are likely to be regular front-page headlines concerning topics such as technological threats to privacy, sensationalism in media coverage of high-profile trials, cameras in the courtroom, use of confidential sources, national security concerns and the press, digital duplication and deception, rights of celebrities, plagiarism, and more. Collectively, this guide assesses key contentious issues and legal precedents, noting current ethical and legal trends and likely future directions.
