East Asian Perspectives on Silence in English Language Education Jim King,Seiko Harumi,2020-06-22 Silence is a key pedagogical issue in language education. Seen by some as a space for thinking and reflection during the learning process, for others silence represents a threat, inhibiting target language interaction which is so vital during second language acquisition. This book eschews stereotypes and generalisations about why so many learners from East Asia seem either reluctant or unable to speak in English by providing a state-of-the art account of current research into the complex and ambiguous issue of silence in language education. The innovative research included in this volume focuses on silence both as a barrier to successful learning and as a resource that may in some cases facilitate language acquisition. The book offers a fresh perspective on ways to facilitate classroom interaction while also embracing silence and it touches on key pedagogical concepts such as teacher cognition, the role of task features, classroom interactional approaches, pedagogical intervention and socialisation, willingness to communicate, as well as psychological and sociocultural factors. Each of the book's chapters include self-reflection and discussion tasks, as well as annotated bibliographies for further reading.

Investigation of learning curve and cost estimation methods for cargo aircraft ,1967 Learning curves are developed for nine cargo aircraft using log-linear, log-quadratic, and log-cubic forms with best results being obtained with the log-quadratic. Estimating relations for the prediction of new aircraft costs are derived using current methods and tested for accuracy on the original sample and on the C-141A; a cost prediction for the C-5A is also obtained. Predictions were also obtained using a recent RAND Corporation developed equation. Predictive accuracy in all cases was poor and the conclusion was reached that present methods are inadequate for the estimation of direct-labor costs. (Author).

Language Learning Environments Phil Benson,2021-06-04 This book is the first in-depth examination of the application of theories of space to issues of second language learning. The author introduces the work of key thinkers on the theory of space and place and the relevance of their ideas to second language acquisition (SLA). He also outlines a new conceptual framework and set of terms for researching SLA that centre on the idea of 'language learning environments'. The book considers the spatial contexts in which language learning takes place and investigates how these spatial contexts are transformed into individualised language learning environments, as learners engage with a range of human and nonhuman, and physical and nonphysical, resources in their daily lives. Revisiting linguistics and language learning theory from a spatial perspective, the book demonstrates that the question of where people learn languages is equally as important as that of how they do so. This work is essential reading for any researcher wishing to research the role of the environment as an active player in SLA.
