Too Much Information Dave Gorman, 2014-09-04 It's hard to imagine a world where anything you could possibly want to know about – and everything you don't even know you want to know about – isn't accessible 24-hours a day, seven days a week, with just a few taps of our fingers. But that world once existed. And Dave Gorman remembers it. He remembers when there were only three channels on TV. He remembers when mobile phones were the preserve of arrogant estate agents and yuppie twonks. And he remembers when you had to unplug your phone to plug the computer into the landline in order to use the (crippling slow) internet. Nowadays of course, the world is full of people trying to tell us things. So much so that we have taught our brains not to pay much attention. After all, click the mouse, tap the screen, flick the channel and it's on to the next thing. But Dave Gorman thinks it's time to have a closer look, to find out how much nonsense we tacitly accept. Suspicious adverts, baffling newspaper headlines, fake twitter, endless cat videos, insane TV shows where the presenters ask the same questions over and over. Can we even hear ourselves think over the rising din? Or is there just too much information?

Mobile Telecommunications in a High-Speed World Peter Curwen, Jason Whalley, 2016-07-22 Mobile Telecommunications in a High Speed World tells the story of 3G and higher-speed mobile communication technologies. Over ten years have passed since the first third-generation (3G) licences were awarded following debates about the merits of auctions versus 'beauty contests' then, nothing much happened. More licences were issued, a few roll-outs commenced and everyone began to think it had all been a horribly expensive mistake. That may still turn out to be the case, but in the meantime there have been massive developments in terms of the number of licences and launches worldwide, in the range of services that can be accessed, in the range of devices that can be used to access them, in operator strategies etc. Even the technology has improved considerably with 4G now under discussion. Much of this story has been chronicled, largely on the Internet, but the information is in tens of thousands of bits and pieces and a large part of it is either misleading or just plain wrong. Here, Peter Curwen and Jason Whalley introduce the outcomes of research that has involved the compilation of a unique database which details every licence and launch worldwide involving 3G. The authors discuss the structure of the industry and the strategic behaviour of operators, as well as the social consequences of the spread of 3G. They examine the role of new entry upon competition, and present analysis of the main operators involved, the development of handsets and especially smartphones. A number of country case studies are included. This comprehensive and up-to-date volume includes a number of country studies and is written by two of the world's foremost researchers on this industry. Mobile Telecommunications in a High Speed World will serve the needs of students, academics and those involved, or contemplating involvement, with the telecoms industry. Why pay thousands of dollars to consultancies to separate the wheat from the chaff with respect to 3G when you can read this book.

Music, Technology, and Education Andrew King, Evangelos Himonides, 2016-06-10 The use of technology in music and education can no longer be described as a recent development. Music learners actively engage with technology in their music making, regardless of the opportunities afforded to them in formal settings. This volume draws together critical perspectives in three overarching areas in which technology is used to support music education: music production; game technology; musical creation, experience and understanding. The fourteen chapters reflect the emerging field of the study of technology in music from a pedagogical perspective. Contributions come not only from music pedagogues but also from musicologists, composers and performers working at the forefront of the domain. The authors examine pedagogical practice in the recording studio, how game technology relates to musical creation and expression, the use of technology to create and assess musical compositions, and how technology can foster learning within the field of Special Educational Needs (SEN). In addition, the use of technology in musical performance is examined, with a particular focus on the current trends and the ways it might be reshaped for use within performance practice. This book will be of value to educators, practitioners, musicologists, composers and performers, as well as to scholars with an interest in the critical study of how technology is used effectively in music and music education.

Ciudadanos.mx Ana Francisca Vega, 2011-10-01 En México Internet se ha colocado al frente de movilizaciones y presiones políticas, justamente porque sin implicar grandes costos, permite informar y congrega a un segmento socialmente inquieto y hambriento de información. Esto se ha traducido en una alta visibilidad de temas y actores: hoy políticos y medios ven a las redes sociales en Internet como fuentes de información, termómetros en ciertos temas y en más de un caso, como adversarios temibles. ¿Te imaginas el potencial del encuentro de cientos de miles de mexicanos dialogando? Este escenario existe: se trata de Twitter, una comunidad virtual que se ha convertido en una plataforma de acción con repercusiones sociales tales como: el movimiento internet necesario, ciudadanos comunes que lograron la eliminación en el Legislativo de una propuesta de impuesto al uso de internet; movimientos como YaBajenle, ReformaCiudadana, y AventonCiudadano; el trayecto de la iniciativa de matrimonio entre parejas del mismo sexo en la Asamblea Legislativa del Distrito Federal. Y otros ejemplos de usos estratégicos de Twitter como herramienta reactiva contra políticas públicas, como medio de expresión y solidaridad, como ventana para revelar temas clave que no aparecen en la discusión pública, como instrumento de información y movilización. Este libro está escrito por personajes diferentes, comunicadores, escritores, activistas, defensores de derechos humanos, columnistas, defensores de internet, senadores, politólogos, internacionalistas o diputados; pero todos tienen una cosa en común: comunican, proponen, debaten... y tuitean. Unos son protagonistas de movilizaciones vía Twitter, otros observadores agudos de la red o impulsores desde su propia trinchera de políticas públicas que han encontrado en Twitter otro espacio para promover temas. Ellos te contarán cómo se puede ir más allá del monitor y realizar acciones que repercutan en el bien de toda una comunidad.
