Introduction to the Mathematics of Computer Graphics Nathan Carter, 2016-12-31 This text, by an award-winning [Author], was designed to accompany his first-year seminar in the mathematics of computer graphics. What computations is my computer doing when it generates a realistic image of my 3D scene? What mathematical tools can I use to animate an object through space? Why do movies always look more realistic than video games? Containing the mathematics and computing needed for making their own 3D computer-generated images and animations, the text, and the course it supports, culminates in a project in which students create a short animated movie using free software. Algebra and trigonometry are prerequisites; calculus is not, though it helps. Programming is not required. Includes optional advanced exercises for students with strong backgrounds in math or computer science.
