Factores relacionados con hipoxia perinatal severa

Osvaldo Martín Alvarez,Yralys Naranjo,2014-05-20 La asfixia perinatal constituye un problema no solo en nuestra provincia, sino tambien a nivel nacional y mundial, sin embargo a pesar de realizarse grandes esfuerzos, nacen todavia un grupo de ninos hipoxicos en nuestras maternidades, que a pesar de poder alcanzar una vida estable, presentan ciertas discapacidades que le imposibilitan integrarse a la sociedad de forma plena como individuos sanos. Se realizo una investigacion analitica de tipo retrospectivo caso control de las embarazadas con recien nacidos con Apgar al quinto minuto igual o menor de 3 en el Hospital Gineco Obstetrico Docente Provincial de Sancti Spiritus, Cuba, para identificar algunos factores relacionados con esta problematica, arribandose a la conclusion que la duracion del trabajo de parto de mas de doce horas, el periodo expulsivo demorado, el modo de comienzo por induccion, el parto distocico, el uso de oxitocina, los antecedentes obstetricos desfavorables, el asma asociada al embarazo, la rotura prematura de membranas, el embarazo prolongado, el meconio en el liquido amniotico y el peso del neonato menor de dos mil quinientos entre otros, tuvieron relacion con la hipoxia al nacer.

Abstract: Abstract of thesis entitled Evaluation of Apgar score as an intermediate assessment of the risk of early mortality Submitted by CHONG Siu Yung for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Hong Kong in October 2004 The Apgar scoring system invented in 1952 is a practical method of evaluating the general physical condition of a newborn infant shortly after delivery. It is crucial to understand the underlying properties behind the use of the scoring system. The aim of this study is to clarify the prognostic value of the Apgar scoring system as an intermediate assessment of risk of early mortality, utilizing one of the largest and most established national birth registries, i.e. the Swedish Medical Birth Registry. It is commonly accepted that the 5-minute Apgar score is the most accurate and widely accepted predictor of neonatal morbidity and mortality, compared with its 1 minute counterpart. However, in this thesis, it was found that the 1-minute Apgar score was a significant independent factor for the prediction of early mortality. The prevalence of low 5-minute Apgar score was insignificant between infants suffered from sudden infant death syndrome

(SIDS) and live birth controls, while non-SIDS postneonatal deaths were found to be significantly more related to low 5- minute Apgar score. In addition, maternal smoking during pregnancy was found to be an important modifiable risk factor for SEDS, especially during the years 1993-1998, following the recommendation of supine sleeping position. The conventional Apgar scoring grouping, i.e. 0-3, 4-6, 7-10, was not supported as it is not the optimal grouping for classifying newborns at risk. Based on the receiver operating characteristic (ROC) analysis, a score

Virginia Wouldn't Slow Down!: The Unstoppable Dr. Apgar and Her Life-Saving Invention Carrie A. Pearson,2023-08-07 A delightful and distinctive picture book about Dr. Virginia Apgar, who invented the eponymous test for evaluating newborn health that's used worldwide every day. The Apgar Score is known the world over: a test given to babies to determine their health moments after they are born. Less well-known is the story of the brilliant, pioneering woman who invented it. Born at the turn of the twentieth century, Virginia "Ginny" Apgar soared above what girls were expected to do—or not do. She wasn't quiet, she wore all sorts of outfits, she played the sports she wanted to—and she pursued the career she chose, graduating near the top of her class at Columbia University and becoming only the second board-certified female anesthesiologist in the United States. The simple five-step test she created—scribbled on the back of a piece of paper in answer to a trainee's question—became the standard and continues to impact countless newborn babies' lives today. Ginny adored science, hated cooking, drove fast, made her own violins, earned a pilot's license, and traveled the world. Here, Carrie Pearson's jaunty storytelling and Nancy Carpenter's playful illustrations capture the energy and independence of a woman who didn't slow down for anything—and changed newborn care forever.
