Aerial Observation; the Airplane Observer, the Balloon Observer, and the Army Corps Pilot Holworthy Hall,2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1921 edition. Excerpt: ... IV AERIAL OBSERVATION A.--General XIII BEFORE going farther we had better fix in mind what we mean by lines and positions, because we are often going to come across these expressions. In the modern trench system there are four positions--fire position (or, in the British idea, the observation position); cover position (about 25 to 50 meters behind the fire position); support (about 150 to 300 meters behind the cover trenches); and reserve (800 to 1,200 meters behind that).1 Each of these positions is made up of from two to five intercommunicating lines of trenches; and between the consecutive positions there is a sort of halfway position not put there for a permanent station of defense, but merely for the purpose of offering a military rest-room, and giving the men from the fire trenches a chance to retreat, in case they need to, to the cover trenches. The expression front line, used as the great majority of newspapers used it, generally meant the first of the three or four rows of fire trenches. The second line has similarly been the name applied by laymen to the second line of fire trenches, and not to the second position. But this is not the correct military terminology and leads to a lot of confusion. If you mean lines you ought to say lines, and if you mean positions you ought to say positions. 1 In the Hindenburg Line the distance between lines varied from 150 to 300 yards, but this was unusual; and it was a two-line position for the most part. The arrangement of positions in the modern trench system was worked out to prevent the enemy artillery from firing at more than one position without readjusting his guns. Ordinarily, only a small fraction of the active force--say a quarter of it--is supposed to be in the...

Better Feedback for Better Teaching Jeff Archer,Steven Cantrell,Steven L. Holtzman,Jilliam N. Joe,Cynthia M. Tocci,Jess Wood,2016-04-25 A practical, research-based guide for ensuring trustworthy classroom observations that provide teachers with meaningful feedback Better Feedback for Better Teaching is an essential resource for school, district, and state, leaders committed to high-quality classroom observations. This practical guide outlines the knowledge and skills classroom observers need to identify and help develop effective teaching, and explains how leaders can best facilitate the development of classroom observers. The best way to ensure high quality instruction in every classroom is to provide teachers with accurate, constructive feedback on practices proven to enhance student learning. Skilled classroom observers help teachers do their best work, so that they can guide students to their greatest potential. Better Feedback for Better Teaching provides helpful, reliable strategies from leading experts and practitioners involved in the Measures of Effective Teaching (MET) project, which carried out one of the largest, most influential studies of classroom observations to date. Among the many topics covered, Better Feedback for Better Teaching describes how to: Build a shared vision of effective teacher feedback among observers Ensure a common understanding of a classroom observation tool Train observers to collect objective evidence from a lesson, efficiently and free of bias Leverage data to improve how observers are trained and supported This comprehensive resource includes helpful starting points, as well as tips to refine techniques and address new challenges. Each section combines clear explanations of key ideas with concrete, adaptable examples and strategies. Self-assessments are included to help you quickly rank current needs and find the most relevant solutions. Filled with valuable, practical tools, Better Feedback for Better Teaching helps educators cultivate high-quality classroom observations that improve teaching and learning.

Fighting for Space Amy Shira Teitel,2020-02-18 Spaceflight historian Amy Shira Teitel tells the riveting story of the female pilots who each dreamed of being the first American woman in space. When the space age dawned in the late 1950s, Jackie Cochran held more propeller and jet flying records than any pilot of the twentieth century—man or woman. She had led the Women's Auxiliary Service Pilots during the Second World War, was the first woman to break the sound barrier, ran her own luxury cosmetics company, and counted multiple presidents among her personal friends. She was more qualified than any woman in the world to make the leap from atmosphere to orbit. Yet it was Jerrie Cobb, twenty-five years Jackie's junior and a record-holding pilot in her own right, who finagled her way into taking the same medical tests as the Mercury astronauts. The prospect of flying in space quickly became her obsession. While the American and international media spun the shocking story of a woman astronaut program, Jackie and Jerrie struggled to gain control of the narrative, each hoping to turn the rumored program into their own ideal reality—an issue that ultimately went all the way to Congress. This dual biography of audacious trailblazers Jackie Cochran and Jerrie Cobb presents these fascinating and fearless women in all their glory and grit, using their stories as guides through the shifting social, political, and technical landscape of the time.
