He talks about his struggles stating that he didn't start out successful in fact he didn't make a significant return for six years However, the more he practiced his craft the better he got and the more return he made. He adds a quote by Laila Ali that says Impossible is just a big word thrown around by small men who find it easier to live in the world they've been given than to explore the power they have to change it. That attitude is evident in the following pages. He talks about how his real life education began when he was 15 and dropped out of school. He then realized he needed a way to make money, but didn't know who would hire a 15-year-old drop out. He began by reading the financial news and poring over stock market reports, as well as building himself an impressive library of over 1,000 investment books alone. Trading appealed to him because there was a lot of freedom. Freedom to stay at home and most of all freedom to use his talents to become a stock market Superperformer He talks about the difference between interest and commitment. While you need interest to start working towards something, you require commitment to become successful. He also states that there is no substitute for real life experience, he shares his tactics but there is no way to become a Superperformer without experiencing it yourself. One of the most important things he talks about is learning to be a great trader first, he states For me, the greatest success came when I finally decided to forget about the money and concentrate on being the best trader I could be. How to Trade in Stocks Jesse Livermore, 2017-04-19 Exact Facsimile of 1940 Edition. All 16 Color charts reproduced in color. Livermore was one of the greatest traders of all time. At his peak in 1929, Jesse Livermore was worth $100 million. In late 1939, Livermore's son, Jesse Jr., suggested to his father that he write a book about his experiences and techniques in trading in the stock and commodity markets. The book was completed and published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce in March 1940. His methods were still new and controversial at the time, and they received mixed reviews from stock market gurus of the period. How to Trade Stocks offered traders their first account of that famously tight-lipped operator's trading system. Written in Livermore's inimitable, no-nonsense style, it interweaves fascinating autobiographical and historical details with step-by-step guidance on: Reading market and stock behaviors Analyzing leading sectors Market timing Money management Notable Quote: The game of speculation is the most uniformly fascinating game in the world. But it is not a game for the stupid, the mentally lazy, the person of inferior emotional balance, or the get-rich-quick adventurer. They will die poor.

Trading and Electronic Markets: What Investment Professionals Need to Know Larry Harris, 2015-10-19 The true meaning of investment discipline is to trade only when you rationally expect that you will achieve your desired objective. Accordingly, managers must thoroughly understand why they trade. Because trading is a zero-sum game, good investment discipline also requires that managers understand why their counterparties trade. This book surveys the many reasons why people trade and identifies the implications of the zero-sum game for investment discipline. It also identifies the origins of liquidity and thus of transaction costs, as well as when active investment strategies are profitable. The book then explains how managers must measure and control transaction costs to perform well. Electronic trading systems and electronic trading strategies now dominate trading in exchange markets throughout the world. The book identifies why speed is of such great importance to electronic traders, how they obtain it, and the trading strategies they use to exploit it. Finally, the book analyzes many issues associated with electronic trading that currently concern practitioners and regulators.

My Trading Journal Sasha Evdakov, 2013-08-15 A trading journal is a way for you to keep track of your trades. It's a way for you to manage your business, and it helps you become better by seeing what marks you are hitting and what you are missing. It is only a reflection of yourself and does not judge or criticize. Often times I hear beginners saying, "well why can't I use Excel or a computer to record my progress?" The problem with this theory is that while you can, it is usually unfeasible when trading because you are focused on the charts and stocks. By opening new files and documents it becomes a distraction and often times you stop recording and writing in the journal over time. Our natural human behavior is to write or do something physical. We become habitual in it. If we create the habit of writing in our journal, our body feels as if it has to write each time. Yes, a trading journal does take a little bit of extra time, but if you put the time, effort, and are honest – it will reward you greatly! Keep this journal handy and always record in it after making any trade.
