How climate change affects the elderly in France Alfhonce Michael,2017-08-24 Seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject Sociology - Age and Aging, grade: 77.3, Kenyatta University, language: English, abstract: Climatic changes are caused by substantial alterations of weather conditions in the global world. These changes are examined by measuring the significant changes observed in the distribution pattern of the weather such as precipitation effects and weather temperatures that appear for over several years. Global warming is the core factor that causes changes in the climate due to the increase in emission of greenhouse gasses into the atmosphere. France has experienced climatic changes such as the heat wave whereby the weather in France becomes unusually warmer which eventually causes the death of the elderly individuals. Firstly, studies state that the adverse climatic changes are caused by certain variables such as societal elements and contextual factors that are closely connected to impact hazardous weather conditions.

Weather Analysis and Forecasting Christo Georgiev,Patrick Santurette,Karine Maynard,2016-06-15

Weather Analysis and Forecasting: Applying Satellite Water Vapor Imagery and Potential Vorticity Analysis, Second Edition, is a step-by-step essential training manual for forecasters in meteorological services worldwide, and a valuable text for graduate students in atmospheric physics and satellite meteorology. In this practical guide, P. Santurette, C.G. Georgiev, and K. Maynard show how to interpret water vapor patterns in terms of dynamical processes in the atmosphere and their relation to diagnostics available from numerical weather prediction models. In particular, they concentrate on the close relationship between satellite imagery and the potential vorticity fields in the upper troposphere and lower stratosphere. These applications are illustrated with color images based on real meteorological situations over mid-latitudes, subtropical and tropical areas. Presents interpretation of the water vapor channels 6.2 and 7.3 μ m as well as advances based on satellite data to improve understanding of atmospheric thermodynamics Improves by new schemes the understanding of upper-level dynamics, midlatitudes cyclogenesis and fronts over various geographical areas Provides analysis of deep convective phenomena to better understand the development of strong thunderstorms and to improve forecasting of severe convective events Includes efficient operational forecasting methods for interpretation of data from NWP models Offers information on satellite water vapor images and potential vorticity fields to analyse and forecast convective phenomena and thunderstorms

Fundamentals of Numerical Weather Prediction Jean Coiffier,2011-12-01 Numerical models have become essential tools in environmental science, particularly in weather forecasting and climate prediction. This book provides a comprehensive overview of the techniques used in these fields, with emphasis on the design of the most recent numerical models of the atmosphere. It presents a short history of numerical weather prediction and its evolution, before describing the various model equations and how to solve them numerically. It outlines the main elements of a meteorological forecast suite, and the theory is illustrated throughout with practical examples of operational models and parameterizations of physical processes. This book is founded on the author's many years of experience, as a scientist at Météo-France and teaching university-level courses. It is a practical and accessible textbook for graduate courses and a handy resource for researchers and professionals in atmospheric physics, meteorology and climatology, as well as the related disciplines of fluid dynamics, hydrology and oceanography.
