Mariners Weather Log ,1957 November issue includes abridged index to yearly volume.

Mariners Weather Log ,1984 Mariners Weather Log contains articles, news and information about marine weather events and phenomenon, storms at sea, weather forecasting, the NWS Voluntary Observing Ship (VOS) Program, Port Meteorological Officers (PMOs), cooperating ships officers, and their vessels. It provides meteorological information to the maritime community, and contains a comprehensive chronicle on marine weather. It recognizes ships officers for their efforts as voluntary weather observers, and allows NWS to maintain contact with and communicate with over 10,000 shipboard observers (ships officers) in the merchant marine, NOAA Corps, Coast Guard, Navy, etc.

THE NETHERLANDS IN THE GLOBAL FOOD SYSTEM Eline Chivot, Willem L. Auping, Sijbren de Jong, Hannes Rööfs, Michel Rademaker, 2016-11-22 This study addressed the question of future food challenges and how these may play out. Part of the analysis focused on the question as to how we may enhance our understanding of the effects of climate change, increased population growth and rising incomes worldwide on future food systems. The worldwide food system is vulnerable to many influences. The approach used in this study focused on the most significant possible influencers of drivers, or the elements having the most effect on how drivers will develop. This approach was employed due to our understanding that the system's complexity cannot be reduced to the drivers alone. The applied research method however allows us to look at the different aspects while recognizing their interlinkages.

Weather and Climate Extremes Thomas R. Karl, Neville Nicholls, Anver Ghazi, 2013-03-09 Are extreme weather events becoming more common? How do extreme weather events impact society? These are critical questions that must be examined as we confront the possibility that the world will experience a change in climate over the next century. Much of the research in climatology over the past decade has focused on potential changes in long- term averages of temperature, precipitation and other factors. However, it is becoming increasingly clear that changes in average values will be accompanied by changes in extreme events. Furthermore, extreme weather events will impact society to a greater extent as people around the world continue to locate in more hazard-prone areas such as coastal zones. This book represents a major step forwards in developing a comprehensive set of information about changes in extreme events by providing a review of the problems in data availability, quality and analysis that make deriving a clear picture of world-wide changes in extreme events so difficult. Audience: The book is intended for policy-makers, professionals, graduate students and others interested in learning how extreme weather events have changed, and how they impact society both now and in the future.

Weather Radar Networking D.H. Newsome, 2012-12-06 Over the past twenty years, there has been a rapid expansion in the number of operational, digital weather radars in Europe. Work within COST 73 stimulated the use of data from these radars and also demonstrated the potential of the international exchange of weather radar data in near real-time. The Management Committee of the COST 73 Project have laid the foundations upon which future international operational radar networking may be built in Europe, and has indicated the directions that future weather radar technological developments might take. Throughout this five year Project, it has been possible to achieve success o~ through the goodwill of the participants. The considerable international co-operation is, in no small measure, the underpinning reason why the Management Committee of COST 73 have been able to address such a wide range of topics within the general category of international weather radar networking. It has been an honour to have had the opportunity to act as Chairman of a group of meteorologists, engineers and managers possessing such a wide variety of talents and experience. I would like to take this opportunity to thank them all for their many and varied contributions.

Assessing Recent Climate Policy Initiatives in the Chen Chen, Koralai Kirabaeva, Danielle N Minnett, Ian W.H. Parry, Emanuele Massetti, Tjeerd Tim, Sylke von Thadden-Kostopoulos, Geoffroy Dolphin, 2023-03-13 The Netherlands has committed to the EU's ambitious targets for cutting greenhouse gas emissions by 2030 and emissions neutrality in 2050 but at the same time is also vulnerable to sea-level rise and flood risks. This paper reviews recent mitigation policy initiatives in the Netherlands, including carbon levies for the industry and power sectors, energy and car tax reforms, and air passenger taxes, and recommends some modifications to these initiatives. The paper also provides assessments of hazards and macroeconomic risks from weather shocks and climate change and assesses the adaption plan against key principles on mainstream climate change into macro-fiscal planning.

Autumn in Japan and in the Netherlands Bernd Harnisch, 2019-12-02 In the Netherlands the weather usually changes in October. Western storms, rain and low temperatures causing the leaves of the trees to fall directly to the ground, instead of colouring yellow and red. There is no Indian summer in the Netherlands. This year, however it was different. I took my camera and photographed the color variety of the Dutch autumn. Coincidentally, I got my photos from a last year visit of Japan in hand, where we were also in the autumn season. I was surprised to see that the photographs made in Japan look different from those of the Netherlands. If one thinks about it, this is certainly not surprising, Japan has a different vegetation, latitude and climate. However, recognizing it unexpectedly in the own photographs, it was at least to me, interesting and surprising. Bernd Harnisch, December 2019
