MEANDERING BRUSH Neha Bisht,2019-05-13 Meandering Brush is a journey of the soul. It is a marriage of beautiful landscapes and verses that express emotions in all their myriad hues. The soulful paintings and poignant verses tell the story of many hearts. A story of love in all its hues. Soul heals with the stimulus it receives from the 5 senses. Sight is one of them. Aligned with the concept of "healing the soul", these soul landscapes and verses spread the powerful and healing energy of colours and elements of nature through art. This is a one of its kind coffee table book exhibit of artwork and poetry. The book offers a collection of beautiful paintings under the theme of "Soul Landscapes" that bring the healing energy of nature and colours into your environment. And the soulful poems give wings to the heart. Art mirrors life. And life is expressed through art. Meandering Brush, through its winding forests and colours, woven by the artist's brush, make so many feelings come alive. As the writer-artist Nehab says, "Regrets there are none. It is just a winter mood. Wine is passion red. Sky is stormy blue." Absorb the power of emotions.

Colony and Confederation George Woodcock,2011-01-01 The selections in this survey of the narrative and lyric poets of Confederation and the later nineteenth century have been chosen to remind readers of the distances and diversities involved as Canadians struggled toward nationhood. Along with essays on Sangster and Mair, the first poets consciously writing of the Canadian scene and the Canadian identity, there are individual studies of Crawford, Roberts, Lampman, Scott and Service. Some of the authors analyse a single work in a poet's canon; others consider several themes or evaluate a poet's philosophical or religious position. To these essays are added three by Norman Newton, George Woodcock and Roy Daniells on the era of high colonialism. The book contains ten pieces published in the journal Canadian Literature over the last thirteen years and five new ones written specifically to enhance this collection.

Now All Roads Lead to France: A Life of Edward Thomas Matthew Hollis,2012-10-22 Winner of the Costa Biography Award, a fascinating exploration of one of the twentieth century's most influential poets. Edward Thomas was perhaps the most beguiling and influential of the war poets. This haunting account of his final five years follows him from his beloved English countryside to the battlefield in France where he lost his life. When he met the American poet Robert Frost in 1913, Thomas was tormented by feelings of failure in his work and in his marriage. With Frost's encouragement he began writing poem after poem as he finally found the expression for which he had spent his life searching. But the First World War put an ocean between them: Frost returned to New England while Thomas enlisted and went to fight in France. It is these roads taken—and not taken—that are at the heart of this unforgettable book, which culminates in Thomas's tragic death on Easter Monday, 1917. Now All Roads Lead to France encompasses an astonishingly creative moment in English literature, when London was a battleground for new, ambitious writing. A generation that included W. B. Yeats, Ezra Pound, Robert Frost, and Rupert Brooke was "making it new"—vehemently and pugnaciously—and this dazzling biography places Thomas firmly in their midst.

Asako, the younger, has become obsessed with locating a third sibling, while also experiencing love for the first time. While Momoko, their father's first child—haunted by the loss of her kamikaze boyfriend and their final, disturbing days together—seeks comfort in a series of unhealthy romances. And both sisters find themselves unable to outrun the legacies of their late mothers.
