Media Accountability and Freedom of Publication Denis McQuail,2003 What are the media's responsibilities? To whom are they accountable? Are they increasingly growing out of control? In the 21st century, our mass media are becoming more powerful and more difficult to hold to account, and attempts at control to prevent harm or make media more responsible are often viewed as infringements of market and media freedom. In this study, Denis McQuail identifies problematic trends and issues and outlines the principles underlying media regulation and accountability.

Get Your Act Together Jeffrey T. Tierney,2021-07-27 We Live in a Crucial Time in Church History Christians Must Hold Themselves Accountable We are living in a time where relationships and marriages are being destroyed. The divorce rate is at an all time high of 61 %, and no one takes the marriage covenant that they make with God seriously anymore. We have become so immersed in technology that heart-to-heart communication seems like a thing of the past. The point of this journal is to start taking an inventory of yourself: your thoughts, feelings, words, actions, and attitudes toward yourself and others. This journal is designed to move you toward Christ and others on a daily basis. It is designed to bring more love and joy into your life and to enhance your relationships and human connections. This journal is not about beating yourself up or about striving for perfection. This journal is about listening to the voice of the Holy Spirit so that you love yourself and others more on a daily basis. It is designed to help you face your deepest fears about yourself and to do the much-needed emotional and soul wound work that you need to get yourself out of the way so the Spirit can lead the way. This journal is about getting your act together and holding yourself accountable to the Spirit within.

After seeing the success with my clients I decided to release it so that everyone can take advantage and more people can be reaching their goals too. This is not a dated journal, it is a 60 day tracking plan, so you add your own dates when you start. Every 30 days you get a new money tracking sheet, most people like to start off at the start of the month but if you are itching to get going, there is no reason why you can start the day you get the journal. Many of the original clients using this journal were busy moms, so to get everything out of their heads on onto paper, everything is included in the day journal including space for the days meals, affirmation, money tracking, what you are grateful for and of course, the 4 big to-dos that will get you moving towards your goal. This is not a self help book, this is a kick in the pants, get it done book! Buy the Done It! Accountability Journal now and get started on reaching your goal right away.

Self-Care for Caregivers - A 60-Day Accountability Journal Jennifer Sermabeikian,2021-04-05 Who are caregivers? This book is intended not just for the typical caregivers we think of but for a whole realm of people who care for others. A caregiver can be many things, such as a teacher, nurse, doctor, pharmacist, therapist, practitioner, coach, trainer, an individual who provides regular direct care for a family member or a friend, someone who works in a care facility, and or a parent caring for their child and not making time for themselves. A caregiver may also be a person that cares for those with health conditions such as Parkinson's disease, Autism, Developmental disabilities, Alzheimer's disease, Traumatic brain injury, Dementia, Spinal cord injuries, Mental health issues, Dissociative identity disorder, Psychiatric disorders, and More. Why a self-care journal for caregivers? For caregivers to successfully help those under their care, they need to provide themselves with self-care. If they are not taking care of their physical, emotional, and mental health, they will not be as equipped to serve others. This journal will provide caregivers with the needed channel to document their own self-care journey and provide inspiration and internal peace. Using this journal for 60 days will give caregivers accountability to themselves. We know that when we repeat actions for a prolonged period of time, consistently, it becomes a routine. Self-care is a routine that is non-negotiable, and this journal will set the tone for the present and future healthy you. Give yourself grace. You don't have to do it all, be it all & or know it all. You don't have to compare yourself to others or live up to anyone else's expectations. What's more important is to take each moment with breath, intention & presence. You will be bringing out your highest and best self when you slow down and realize that life is beautiful even if you don't do it all or have all the answers. You will be a better and healthier you when you give yourself grace.

Social Accounting and Public Management Stephen P. Osborne,Amanda Ball,2010-10-18 Social accounting as a discipline has challenged the methodology and focus of the larger field of accounting over the last 50 years. More recently it has taken on greater significance for other subjects as well, addressing issues for public policy and management more broadly. These include the issues of the nature of accountability in the contemporary plural state, environmental and societal sustainability, the ethical management and governance of public services and resources, and the creation and sustenance of social capital as an essential element of the modern plural state. Social Accounting and Public Management brings together for the first time researchers from a range of disciplines including accounting, political science, management, sociology and policy studies to discuss and develop our knowledge and theory of the nature of 'accountability' in contemporary global society and the challenges it may pose for public policy and management. This book addresses this nexus of all of these issues and disciplines, and through this, makes a contribution to the development of the disciplines of both social accounting and public policy and management.
