Alte and Neue Pinakothek Munich Bernhard

Maaz,2017 The Alte and Neue Pinakothek in Munich rank among the great galleries of the world. Their comprehensive collections trace in detail the development of art from the Middle Ages through the periods of the Renaissance, Baroque, Romanticism, Realism and Impressionism up to the birth of Modernism. The Neoclassical design of the Alte Pinakothek by Leo von Klenze (1836) had a seminal influence on museum architecture in Europe and provides the setting for the Old Masters. After the second museum building (completed in 1853) was destroyed during the Second World War, the architect Alexander von Branca created today's Neue Pinakothek (1981). Its formal expression, in the idiom of a medieval fortress, and impressive exhibition galleries have made it a classic of Postmodernism. In this book, the author offers a refreshingly personal perspective on an eclectic selection of memorable works from across the collections.

Excerpt from Catalogue of the Paintings in the Old Pinakothek, Munich: With a Historical Introduction Viewed in the light of the history of art Bavaria, during the middle-ages, was decidedly behind the times. While, after the eleventh century, the Rhenish countries and Saxony showed an active fostering of art with good results, and also the neighboring Ecclesiastical Principalities and Free Cities, like Würzburg and Bamberg, Ratisbon, Augsburg and Nuremberg, raised themselves to a relatively high grade, the towns of Bavaria, even those favored by ducal residence, remained in this respect miserably poor. This was particularly the case with Munich, where the Emperor Ludwig the Bavarian himself occupied an extremely inartistic palace. The Capital contained no building of distinction within its narrow limits until the erection of the Frauenkirche, 1468 - 1488. It was the same with Ingolstadt. Landshut alone was somewhat in advance, and could boast, not only of a notable mediaeval palace (the Trausnitz), but of the Church of St. Martin, which is in architectural respects decidedly superior to the Frauenkirche of Munich. Still none of these churches with long and high aisles, built in a style which did not appear until the end of the middle-ages, can be remotely compared with such a jewel as the late Romanic edifice at Bamberg, or with the Gothic Cathedral of Ratisbon.
