The Freshwater Budget of the Arctic Ocean Edward Lyn Lewis, E. Peter Jones, Peter Lemke, Terry D. Prowse, Peter Wadhams, 2012-12-06 Following a decision by the Arctic Ocean Sciences Board (AOSB) in July 1996 the then chairman, Geoffrey Holland, wrote a letter of invitation to a meeting to plan a Symposium on the Freshwater Balance of the Arctic. The meeting was held in Ottawa on November 12-13 1996 and was attended by representatives of various organisations, including the U.S. National Science Foundation (NSF), as well as individual scientists. Results of this meeting included: • Co-sponsorship with AOSB by the Scientific Committee on Ocean Research (SCOR), the Arctic Climate System Study (ACSYS) and the Global Energy and Water Cycle Experiment (GEWEX). • A decision to apply for funding as a Advanced Research Workshop (ARW) of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) Scientific Affairs Division. • That expenses would be covered in part by funds available through an existing NSF grant to the SCOR Executive offices in Baltimore, MD. • The appointment of myself to be Chairman/Manager for the Symposium. • Provision of a recommended list of Scientific Advisors to assist the Chairman in selecting key speakers.

Ultramarathon Mom Holly Zimmermann, 2018 With condemning comments and dubious looks from other moms, Holly Zimmermann, mother of four young children, endeavors to take on some of the world's most difficult and dangerous foot races. A grueling 257-kilometer ultramarathon through the Sahara Desert, written in a daily journal-style format, is the core of the story. The brutally hot days of running under a scorching sun, living on granola bars and nuts, and the ice-cold nights sleeping on the ground of an open tent during a sand storm are balanced with heartwarming stories of friendship and comradery. Interspersed between the adventures in the Sahara, Holly recalls a race up the snow-covered Zugspitze, the highest mountain in Germany, and being chased for half a mile by a rabid sheep, having a falcon drag its talons across her head, and how two bombs went off before her eyes at the finish line of the Boston Marathon. After having conquered the Sahara Desert, the setting for her next challenge shifted to the opposite extreme at the end of that same year: Greenland, for the Polar Circle Marathon. Temperatures cold enough to cause frostbite within minutes and gale force winds greeted the runners at the starting line on the Arctic ice cap. With chains on her running shoes and four layers of clothing, the book goes on to describe the most beautiful sunset imaginable: hues of pink, gold, and red shimmering off the blue and silver of the ice below her feet. What makes this book distinctive are the Forrest-Gump-like happenstances which occur throughout, brought in as flashbacks between the days and nights in the desert. A colorful cast of characters as training partners include the world champion of ultradistance cycling as well as the grandson of Italian fashion icon Salvatore Ferragamo. Training, planning, and gear for ultramarathons as well as nutritional tips for fueling the body in preparation and during such events are also described, always with a touch of sarcastic humor. Ultramarathon Mom: From the Sahara to the Arctic tells a unique story and delivers an impactful message: live your dreams.

Lost & Found: Why We Need Adventure Paul J. Watkins, 2021-05-12 In early 2017 Paul Watkins, a nerdy, bespectacled, father of two from a country town, took on one of the toughest races on the planet, the 6633 Arctic Ultra - a 583-kilometre unsupported solo race deep into the Arctic Circle. Four days in - frozen, hallucinating, broken and bewildered - Paul withdrew from the race, barely half way to the finish line. Two years later Paul returned to the Arctic. To face some demons and resolve unfinished business. Beyond the story of how this gruelling race unfolded - of pushing virtually non-stop for eight days in temperatures of -40c under the magnificent northern lights - this book details the lessons learnt along the way. How we deal with 'failure', why motivation doesn't equal discipline and how we let society undervalue us. Come on a wild adventure and discover how to find your own.

Preparative Polar Organometallic Chemistry Lambert Brandsma, 2012-12-06 Preparative Polar Organometallic Chemistry is a collection of laboratory procedures for the synthesis and functionalization of organoalkali and Grignard compounds. The second volume with methods for generation and transformation of compounds bearing the metal at an sp³ carbon complements the first in which the metal was bound to an sp² carbon atom in the reagent. Synthetically important intermediates such as metallated S,S-acetales, imines, nitriles, isonitriles and ketones are illustrated. All procedures have been worked out in full detail and tested in the author's own laboratory. Both books are intended to be practical bench-top laboratory manuals for working organic chemists, from the student to the advanced scientist.

Arctic Climate Impact Assessment - Scientific Report Arctic Climate Impact Assessment, 2005-11-07 The Arctic is now experiencing some of the most rapid and severe climate change on earth. Over the next 100 years, climate change is expected to accelerate, contributing to major physical, ecological, social, and economic changes, many of which have already begun. Changes in arctic climate will also affect the rest of the world through increased global warming and rising sea levels. Arctic Climate Impact Assessment was prepared by an international team of over 300 scientists, experts, and knowledgeable members of indigenous communities. The report has been thoroughly researched, is fully referenced, and provides the first comprehensive evaluation of arctic climate change, changes in ultraviolet radiation and their impacts for the region and for the world. It is illustrated in full color throughout. The results provided the scientific foundations for the ACIA synthesis report - Impacts of a Warming Arctic - published by Cambridge University Press in 2004.

The Interactive Stance Jonathan Ginzburg, 2012-01-12 This book presents one of the first attempts at developing a precise, grammatically rooted, theory of conversation motivated by data from real conversations. The theory has descriptive reach from the micro-conversational - e.g. self-repair at the word level - to macro-level phenomena such as multi-party conversation and the characterization of distinct conversational genres. It draws on extensive corpus studies of the British National Corpus, on evidence from language acquisition, and on computer simulations of language evolution. The theory provides accounts of the opening, middle game, and closing stages of conversation. it also offers a new perspective on traditional semantic concerns such as quantification and anaphora. The Interactive Stance challenges orthodox views of grammar by arguing that, unless we wish to exclude from analysis a large body of frequently occurring words and constructions, the right way to construe grammar is as a system that characterizes types of talk in interaction.
