Debt Management Systems ,1990 Debt management is a relatively new (five to ten years old in its present shape) function of government. Building a successful debt management office can take as long as ten years. Perhaps some of the failures reported by participants were necessary steps on the way to better debt management. Seen from this long-term perspective, the developing countries have, perhaps unwittingly, been involved in a research and development activity; governments should not worry too much about false starts, or time and money lost. As in all research activities, the goal must be to learn from past mistakes, to learn from others' successes and errors, and to apply these lessons towards the future. The creation of a debt management unit and the coordination required for good debt management can be expected to generate resistance from both other agencies and the private sector. Thus, the international organizations with an interest in improving debt management in the developing countries have a major role to play in taking the issues of debt management, including the importance of the debt office, to decisionmakers at the highest levels in their policy dialogue and lending activities. Although problems remain both upstream and downstream from the computer-supported operations of debt data management, it is agreed that these information systems are much closer to an acceptable solution than was the case in the past.
