

Budget 2012

United States. Congress. House. Committee on the Budget

Budget of the United States Government, Fiscal Year 2012 ,2011-02 The President's Budget for Fiscal Year 2012 represents his blueprint for America's future that the White House sends to Congress each year. To win the future, we have to out-innovate, out-educate and out-build the rest of the world, tapping the creativity and imagination of our people. We have to take responsibility for our deficit, by investing in what makes America stronger and cutting what doesn't. And we have to reform our government so that it's smarter, leaner, and better able to take on the challenges of the 21st century. The President's Budget is his plan to do just that. The full Budget and additional information is available at WhiteHouse.gov/winning-the-future.

Appendix, Budget of the United States Government, Fiscal Year 2012 Office of Management and Budget (U.S.),2011-02-14 Contains detailed information on the various appropriations and funds that constitute the budget and is designed primarily for the use of the Appropriations Committee. It includes for each agency: the proposed text of appropriations language, budget schedules for each account, new legislative proposals, and explanations of the work to be performed and the funds needed, and proposed general provisions applicable to the appropriations of entire agencies or group of agencies. Information is also provided on certain activities whose outlays are not part of the budget totals.

IRS Budget 2012: Extending Systematic Reviews of Spending Could Identify More Savings Over Time James R. White,2011-06-06 The financing of the federal government depends largely on the Internal Revenue Service's (IRS) efforts to collect taxes. To fund IRS's 2012 operations, the President requested $13.3 billion spread over five appropriations, including $6 billion for enforcement, $4.6 billion for operations support, and $2.3 billion for taxpayer services. This report reviewed the FY 2012 budget justification for IRS. The objectives were to: (1) describe IRS's budget and staffing trends for FYs 2008 through 2012; (2) assess IRS's process for identifying potential savings and how it used savings that were greater than projected; (3) describe new enforcement, taxpayer service and other initiatives in the FY 2012 budget justification, including any estimates of return on investment (ROI); (4) assess any legislative proposals in the budget justification and how IRS reports their costs; (5) assess how the budget justification reports on the costs and performance of major IT systems; (6) describe how 2012 PPACA costs are presented in the budget justification; and (7) document IRS's implementation of GAO's budget recommendations from prior years' reports as well as highlight open matters for Congress and recommendations to IRS with potential savings or revenues. The Congressional Budget Office's 2012 Long-term Budget Outlook United States. Congress. House. Committee on the Budget, 2012

The 2012 Long-term Budget Outlook, 2012 In the past few years, the federal government has been recording the largest budget deficits since 1945, both in dollar terms and as a share of the economy. Consequently, the amount of federal debt held by the public has surged. At the end of 2008, that debt equaled 40 percent of the nation's annual economic output (gross domestic product, or GDP)--a little above the 40-year average of 38 percent. Since then, the figure has shot upward: By the end of this year, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) projects, federal debt will exceed 70 percent of GDP--the highest percentage since shortly after World War II. The sharp rise in debt stems partly from lower tax revenues and higher federal spending caused by the severe economic downturn and from policies enacted during the past few years. However, the growing debt also reflects an imbalance between spending and revenues that predated the recession. Whether that debt will continue to grow in coming decades will be affected not only by long-term demographic and economic trends but also by policymakers' decisions about taxes and spending. The aging of the baby-boom generation portends a significant and sustained increase in the share of the population receiving benefits from Social Security and Medicare, as well as long-term care services financed by Medicaid. Moreover, per capita spending for health care is likely to continue rising faster than spending per person on other goods and services for many years (although the magnitude of that gap is uncertain). Without significant changes in government policy, those factors will boost federal outlays relative to GDP well above their average of the past several decades--a conclusion that holds under any plausible assumptions about future trends in demographics, economic conditions, and health care costs. According to CBO's projections, if current laws remained in place, spending on the major federal health care programs alone would grow from more than 5 percent of GDP today to almost 10 percent in 2037 and would continue to increase thereafter.¹ Spending on Social Security is projected to rise much less sharply, from 5 percent of GDP today to more than 6 percent in 2030 and subsequent decades. Altogether, the aging of the population and the rising cost of health care would cause spending on the major health care programs and Social Security to grow from more than 10 percent of GDP today to almost 16 percent of GDP 25 years from now. That combined increase of more than 5 percentage points for such spending as a share of the economy is the federal government's programs and activities equivalent to about $850 billion today. (By comparison, spending on all of, excluding net outlays for interest, has averaged about 18.5 percent of GDP over the past 40 years.) If lawmakers continued certain policies that have been in place for a number of years or modified some provisions of current law that might be difficult to sustain for a long period, the increase in spending on health care programs and Social Security would be even larger. Absent substantial increases in federal revenues, such growth in outlays would result in greater debt burdens than the United States has ever experienced.

taxpayers from 2014-15 will be provided with a new Personal Tax Statement, detailing income tax and national insurance payments. There will be consultation on simplifying Carbon Reduction Commitment energy efficiency scheme to support business. The measures outlined cover the areas of personal tax; corporate taxes; tax measures affecting property, pensions, charities; indirect taxes; tax reliefs; anti-avoidance; tax administration and supply side reform.

A Budget for the Rest of Us, 2012 The opinions and recommendations in this report, and any errors, are those of the authors, and do not necessarily reflect the views of the publishers or funders of this report. [...] While Prime Minister Harper was at Davos signaling major cuts to Old Age Security in the forthcoming budget, the leaders of 11 international organizations - including the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the World Trade Organization - issued a joint statement warning about the economic and social risks of austerity programs.¹ A Budget for the Rest of Us: Alternative Federal Budget [...] Few of the hundreds of thousands of discouraged workers who left the workforce when jobs disappeared during the recession have returned.³ Most Canadians believe we are still in a recession, though it officially ended 18 months ago.⁴ This is hardly surprising in an environment where high unemployment and falling incomes are the new normal, where the gap between the rich and the rest continues to widen [...] Given the lack of individual currencies and central banks in each of these countries and the unwillingness of the European Central Bank to dramatically expand its balance sheet, or of the core EU countries to stimulate growth through income transfer programs to periphery countries, it is likely that the European debt crisis will drag on through 2012. [...] In fact, it is in part the result of a structural shift away from the stabilizing influence of the federal government in the Canadian economy.

Implementing Results-Based Budget Management Frameworks Asian Development Bank, 2017-12-01 The use of results-based budget management (RBBM) is well established around the world as a concept. RBBM is intended to hold managers to account for their role in organizing the supply of goods and services to the public, and to enforce a regular review of the effectiveness of government expenditure programs. However, there would appear to be significant gaps between concept and implementation. In order for governments to gauge policy effectiveness, a statistical framework must be developed to define outputs and outcome indicators. This publication examines a select group of countries that have led the use of RBMM. It also identifies weaknesses in their implementation from a statistical analysis perspective and suggests guidelines for the development of output descriptions, output indicators, and outcome indicators.
