Brewing Resistance: Indian Coffee House and the Emergency in Postcolonial India Kristin Victoria Magistrelli Plys, 2020-10-29 This book details the movement against India's Emergency based on newly uncovered archival evidence and oral histories.

Café Rampur Saras Azad, 2021-04-15 During mid-2000s, in a small town in India, three loafers saw a dream: a dream to own a coffee shop in their town. But they had no money, and no one helped them. People called their dream foolish, unreasonable, and impractical. But they did not lose hope. And one day an accident changed their lives. A girl came into their lives and things started changing. They found a financier who invested on them. Finally, the first ever coffee shop in Rampur was established. But the journey to success wasn't easy. Their concept flopped within a year from its inception. During their journey, a love story thrived between one of the three friends and the girl. Will they emerge as winners? Welcome to another book from the author: a story about passion, love and friendship.

Café Amour Manik S Singh, 2020-05-19 Meet Veer and Simran, born and raised in different environments that have shaped their views of love and relationships accordingly. Despite their contrasting perspectives, their paths cross unexpectedly at a quaint place amidst the city center and leave both of them in awe.

Delhi & NCR City Guide , 2006

Not Just a Good Food Guide: New Delhi M. R. Narayan Swamy, 2005 New Delhi is known for its exquisite Mughlai cuisine (introduced by the early Islamic rulers) and an extraordinary range of vegetarian fare. Chinese food, tempered in true Indian inimitable style, is the second most popular cuisine in the country. It all began in the late 18th century with a failed business by a Chinese immigrant. Today, authentic and 'Indianised' Chinese food is available all over the city, in high-end restaurants, mid-range eateries, mobile vans and small kiosks.

Much Ado Over Coffee Bhaswati Bhattacharya,2017-08-03 Based on oral history, fiction, fascinating intellectual gossip, and records of the Coffee Board of India, this study is a multi-sited ethnography of the Indian Coffee House, possibly the world's first coffee house chain. It offers a critical analysis of adda (informal meetings) of the educated middle class in Allahabad, Calcutta and Delhi. The coffee house became the new socio-intellectual nerve centre, replacing the neighbourhood tea shops, and creating an entirely different social space. This book will have line drawings and cartoons as well as archival photographs.

Dinner at the New Gene Café Bill Lambrecht,2007-04-01 Biotech companies are racing to alter the genetic building blocks of the world's food. In the United States, the primary venue for this quiet revolution, the acreage of genetically modified crops has soared from zero to 70 million acres since 1996. More than half of America's processed grocery products-from cornflakes to granola bars to diet drinks-contain gene-altered ingredients. But the U.S., unlike Europe and other democratic nations, does not require labeling of modified food. Dinner at the New Gene Café expertly lays out the battle lines of the impending collision between a powerful but unproved technology and a gathering resistance from people worried about the safety of genetic change.
