Studies on Time-reversal Invariant Topological Insulators Joseph Maciejko,2011 This dissertation brings together a number of topics in the theory of time-reversal invariant topological insulators. The first four chapters are devoted to the transport properties of the two-dimensional (2D) quantum spin Hall state. We explain nonlocal transport measurements in mercury telluride (HgTe) quantum wells in terms of a Landauer-Büttiker theory of helical edge transport and confirm the discovery of the quantum spin Hall state in this material. We find that decoherence can lead to backscattering without breaking microscopic time-reversal symmetry. As an example of incoherent scattering, we study a Kondo impurity in an interacting helical edge liquid. A renormalization group analysis shows the existence of an impurity quantum phase transition governed by the Luttinger parameter of the edge liquid between a local helical Fermi liquid with T^6 scaling of the low-temperature conductance, and an insulating strongly correlated phase with fractionally charged emergent excitations. In the presence of a time-reversal symmetry breaking magnetic field, it is known that even coherent scattering can lead to backscattering. Through exact numerical diagonalization we find that nonmagnetic quenched disorder has a strong localizing effect on the edge transport if the disorder strength is comparable to the bulk gap. The predicted magnetoconductance agrees qualitatively with experiment. The last two chapters are devoted to 3D topological insulators. We propose a combined magnetooptical Kerr and Faraday rotation experiment as a universal measure of the Z_2 invariant. Finally, we propose a fractional generalization of 3D topological insulators in strongly correlated systems, characterized by ground state degeneracy on topologically nontrivial spatial 3-manifolds, a quantized fractional bulk magnetoelectric polarizability without time-reversal symmetry breaking, and a halved fractional quantum Hall effect on the surface.

Mixed Models Eugene Demidenko,2013-08-05 Praise for the First Edition “This book will serve to greatly complement the growing number of texts dealing with mixed models, and I highly recommend including it in one’s personal library.” —Journal of the American Statistical Association Mixed modeling is a crucial area of statistics, enabling the analysis of clustered and longitudinal data. Mixed Models: Theory and Applications with R, Second Edition fills a gap in existing literature between mathematical and applied statistical books by presenting a powerful examination of mixed model theory and application with special attention given to the implementation in R. The new edition provides in-depth mathematical coverage of mixed models’ statistical properties and numerical algorithms, as well as nontraditional applications, such as regrowth curves, shapes, and images. The book features the latest topics in statistics including modeling of complex clustered or longitudinal data, modeling data with multiple sources of variation, modeling biological variety and heterogeneity, Healthy Akaike Information Criterion (HAIC), parameter multidimensionality, and statistics of image processing. Mixed Models: Theory and Applications with R, Second Edition features unique applications of mixed model methodology, as well as: Comprehensive theoretical discussions illustrated by examples and figures Over 300 exercises, end-of-section problems, updated data sets, and R subroutines Problems and extended projects requiring simulations in R intended to reinforce material Summaries of major results and general points of discussion at the end of each chapter Open problems in mixed modeling methodology, which can be used as the basis for research or PhD dissertations Ideal for graduate-level courses in mixed statistical modeling, the book is also an excellent reference for professionals in a range of fields, including cancer research, computer science, and engineering.
