The Onward reciter ed. by W. Darrah William Darrah,1877

The Press We Deserve Richard Boston,2015-07-16 Originally published in 1970. This book takes an extremely critical look at the British Press and explodes complacently held views of the time about the merits and virtues of British newspapers. From its polemical introduction by the editor it continues with chapters by a strong host of contributors to set the press in historical context, consider Fleet Street's methods, and look at the effect of advertising. Particular aspects investigated are that of women's journalism, sport, financial journalism and reviewing. Final chapters look at the underground, fringe press, provincial papers, and a comparison with other countries' press.

Echoes of the Past Mercier Press,Mercier Press, Limited, The,2001-10-01 For over a century, the Evening Echo has brought news to the people of Cork, seeing the city through good times and bad. The newspaper has been a friend and companion reflecting the soul of Cork ever since the first edition appeared on the streets in 1892. Over the years, the cry of the Echo boys has been as much a part of Cork life as tripe and drisheen, the Bells of Shandon and the clash of the ash. It is part of the city's folklore and history. The Evening Echo has recorded in photographs the lives of generations of people. In this book, the rich store of photographic memories offers a unique insight into those lives, conveying alike the drama of great occasions and the simplicity of everyday events.
