Eyeball soup Ian MacDonald, Charles Clough, 2006-01-01 Aimed at 7-11 year olds, especially boys, this book contains two amazing sci-fi stories, told with generous helpings of excitement, adventure and humour by Ian MacDonald.

There's an Eyeball in My Soup Ric Averill, 2011 Roxxi loves gross foods. She loves them so much that she wants to start a restaurant of things no one else would eat. She'd really like to win a Wrigley's Believe It or Else record for cooking and eating the most gross things. Roxxi enlists the aid of her reluctant best friend, Marie Rose, science-nerd neighbor Eugene, and dog Jack. Unexpected help also comes from Roxxi's cousin, Karl, a recently returned veteran of the war in Iraq. Challenged by Alice, a rather privileged girl from their school, the quartet decides that their restaurant might even beat Alice's Sweet Shop in a competition to see who makes the most creative and productive use of their summer. The competition is intense, the food is gross and the stakes get higher and higher. Threatened by the success of La Cabeza de Cabra (Goat Head) Restaurant, Alice stoops to calling Mr. Herman, the city health inspector, to pay Roxxi a visit, which ultimately results in a serious confrontation between Herman and Karl. When the smoke clears, Roxxi understands more about the game of life than she ever expected to learn during her 11th summer--P. [4] of cover.

Retail Tales and Nonsense Michael Dichter, 2010-10-28 Who Ya Bagging For? I have been told to bag for the cashier, the other bagger, or the supervisor. But very rarely have I been told to bag for the guest. This seems funny to me. Now if they wanted to tell me to take over for the other employee or the guest(s), that would make sense, but the easy, lazy way to communicate seems to be the only way they know how. You'd think someone that has the skills to do this job would at least know the difference between bagging for the cashier, etc., and the guests

How Magicians Think Joshua Jay,2021-09-28 The door to magic is closed, but it's not locked. And now Joshua Jay, one of the world's most accomplished magicians, not only opens that door but brings us inside to reveal the artistry and obsessiveness, esoteric history, and long-whispered-about traditions of a subject shrouded in mystery. And he goes one step further: Joshua Jay brings us right into the mind of a magician—how they develop their other worldly skills, conjure up illusions, and leave the rest of us slack jawed with delight time after time. Along the way, Jay reveals another kind of secret, one all readers will find meaningful even if they never aspire to perform sleight of hand: What does it take to follow your heart and achieve excellence? In 52 short, compulsively readable essays, Jay describes how he does it, whether it's through the making of illusions, the psychology behind them, or the way technology influences the world of magic. He considers the aesthetics of performance, discusses contemporary masters, including David Copperfield, Penn & Teller, and David Blaine, and details how magicians hone their craft. And answers questions like: Can a magic trick be too good? How do you saw a person in half? Is there real magic in the universe? The answers, like so much in magic and life, depend on you.
