Building Design Capability in the Public Sector Lisa Malmberg, 2017-02-14 Public sector organizations are in need of new approaches to development and innovation. There is a need to develop a capability to better understand priorities, needs and wishes of public sector service users and become more proactive, in order to meet the demands on keeping costs down and quality high. Design is increasingly put forward as a potential answer to this need and there are many initiatives taken across the world to encourage the use of a design approach to development and innovation within public sector. In relation to this trend there is a need to improve the understanding of how public sector organizations develop ability to exploit design; how they develop design capability. This is the focus of this thesis, which through an exploratory study has observed the two initiatives aiming to introduce design and develop design capability within healthcare and social service organizations. One main contribution of this work is an understanding of the design capability concept based on a structured review of the use of the design capability concept in the literature. The concept has previously been used in relation to different aspects of designs in organizations. Another important contribution is the development of an understanding for how design capability is developed based on interpretations founded in the organizational learning perspective of absorptive capacity. The study has identified how different antecedents to development of design capability have influenced this development in the two cases. The findings have identified aspects that both support and impede the development of design capability which are important to acknowledge and address when aiming to develop design capability within a public sector organization. In both cases, the set up of the knowledge transferring efforts focus mainly on developing awareness of design. Similar patterns are seen in other prior and parallel initiatives. The findings however suggest that it is also important to ensure that the organization have access to design competence and that structures like routines, processes and culture support and enable the use of design practice, in order to make design a natural part of the continuous development work.

The Impact of Climate Change on Our Life Abdelnaser Omran, Odile Schwarz-Herion, 2018-02-23 This book introduces the highly topical issue from many different angles, sensitizing readers to the various challenges to human life posed by climate change, identifying possible intentional and inadvertent anthropogenic factors and consequences, and seeking socially and environmentally viable solutions. The book begins by examining the impact of the climate change discussion on science, politics, economy and culture – from its historical origin in the first Club of Rome Report and its inclusion in the UN's SDGs to the Paris Agreement and beyond. Comprising 12 chapters, it analyses the factors which caused the catastrophic 2014 Kelantan flood in Malaysia, focusing on the Kuala Krai district and discusses mud architecture in Wadi Hadramout, Yemen and mitigating the expected effects of climate change on this unique architecture and cultural heritage. It also examines the economic costs of climate change on health and the increased burden on individual expenditures and national health systems. The role of climate change in the water-energy nexus and efforts to increase efficiency in energy and water end-use to increase Queensland's agricultural sector's resilience in Australia is addressed, as is water security and climate change issues in developing countries and the potential of partnership procurement strategies for managing sustainable urban water supply in Nigerian cities. It also includes a chapter offering a new approach to waste management, exploring to what extent waste can complicate our daily actions and influence environmental decay, and recommending that renewable materials be sorted and separated from other types of materials to avoid cross-contamination, to increase the value of the materials, and to ease the process of manufacturing. Subsequent chapters identify factors sustaining the municipal solid waste management and practices in Ajdabiya city in Libya, and look at accounting disclosure remedies by exploring areas in which sustainability reporting could expand beyond corporate environmental reporting to additional disclosures, curbing recklessness in pursuing merely economic goals. The book shows – from the perspective of agriculture – how human activities can increase the negative impacts of climate change on lifestyle in Malaysia, suggesting alternative lifestyles and encouraging international cooperative efforts. The last chapters evaluate the impacts of various environmental factors on the local tourism sector in Pakistan, and discuss strategies to tackle climate change, focusing on the opportunities and risks of climate engineering. Since these risks encompass inadvertent negative effects and targeted abuse for covert weather warfare and terrorism that violate the UN's ENMOD convention, the author recommends viable alternatives to deal with climate change.

Combating Violent Extremism and Radicalization in the Digital Era is an essential reference for the latest research on the utilization of online tools by terrorist organizations to communicate with and recruit potential extremists and examines effective countermeasures employed by law enforcement agencies to defend against such threats. Destination Image - Do Berlin's tourist authorities have to consider cultural segmentation when developing marketing strategies relating to the place's image in an era that refers to the global tourist? Wassim El Kadhi, 2008-10-13 Inhaltsangabe: Abstract: Destination image is considered as the key in attracting tourists. This thesis purported to scrutinise whether Berlin's tourist authorities have to consider cultural segmentation when developing marketing strategies relating to the place's image. As an exploratory study, it examined Berlin's image among youths from Arab-Islamic and Protestant European countries and confronted them. In an era that is subjected to globalisation and refers to the global tourist, it is vindicated to pose this question. Various scholars are convinced that the world tourism market may be treated as a homogenous one due to globalisation. However, the literature also provides some opposing bearings and discusses them. It further gives some background information on Berlin as a tourist destination, addresses destination image concerning influential cultural factors and the implications of globalisation on consumer behaviour. Finally, it studies the Arab-Islamic and Protestant European youth cultures in the light of globalisation and possible modifying effects. In response to the objectives of this study, primary research was conducted. It involved both quantitative and qualitative data collection methods. Field and online surveys enabled the researcher to collect 239 completed questionnaires (103 Arab-Islamic and 136 Protestant European youths). Besides semi-structured interviews and focus group discussions were carried out at EF Language School, Bournemouth. Following the completion of the survey, obtained data was entered into SPSS. Frequencies and means were calculated for each variable and several ANOVA tests and cross-tabulations conducted in order to stress destination image's specificity in terms of cultural background. Research findings revealed significant differences between the groups regarding their perception of Berlin. Arab-Islamic youths had a more negative stance towards Berlin than their counterparts. Not only did divergences occur between the groups, but also within the groups. Thus, destination image is culture-specific and may also vary across countries sharing similar cultural backgrounds. Overall, despite the effects of globalisation, cultural market segmentation still remains a vital element for a tourist place such as Berlin where the image management is concerned. The thesis provides recommendations for Berlin congruent with the outcomes and concludes with the provision of recommendations for further [...]

Breitbandversorgung, Medienkonvergenz, Leitmedien Bernd Beckert,Ulrich Riehm,2013 Die Tageszeitung auf einem E-Book-Reader lesen, mit dem Smartphone fernsehen, über das Internet Radio hören und am Fernseher im Internet surfen - die etablierten Medien scheinen zunehmend ihre Kontur zu verlieren. Der Strukturwandel mündet in Medienkonvergenz, und damit ist auch die Frage angesprochen, ob traditionelle Leitmedien ihren Stellenwert einbüßen, selbst wenn Presse, Hörfunk und Fernsehen offenbar wichtige Knotenpunkte der medial vernetzten Gesellschaft bleiben. Diese Entwicklungen werfen neue medienpolitische Fragen auf und stellen den Gesetzgeber vor die Herausforderung, mit konvergenten Medienangeboten Schritt zu halten und die Regulierung anzupassen. Ziel der Medien- und Netzpolitik ist es dabei, Barrieren für Medieninnovationen abzubauen und zugleich die normativen Aspekte einer demokratischen Medienpolitik nicht aus den Augen zu verlieren. Dieses Buch greift zentrale Fragestellungen des langfristigen Medienwandels auf und benennt Handlungsoptionen. Als wichtige Politikfelder identifizieren die Autoren den Ausbau der Breitbandnetze, die Netz- und Plattformneutralität, die Gewährleistung von Anbieter- und Meinungsvielfalt sowie die Transparenz im Internet.

Enhancing the Climate Resilience of Africa's Infrastructure Raffaello Cervigni,Rikard Liden,James E. Neumann,Kenneth M. Strzepek,2015-09-01 To sustain Africa's growth, and accelerate the eradication of extreme poverty, investment in infrastructure is fundamental. In 2010, the Africa Infrastructure Country Diagnostic found that to enable Africa to fill its infrastructure gap, some US$ 93 billion per year for the next decade will need to be invested. The Program for Infrastructure Development in Africa (PIDA), endorsed in 2012 by the continent's Heads of State and Government, lays out an ambitious long-term plan for closing Africa's infrastructure including trough step increases in hydroelectric power generation and water storage capacity. Much of this investment will support the construction of long-lived infrastructure (e.g. dams, power stations, irrigation canals), which may be vulnerable to changes in climatic patterns, the direction and magnitude of which remain significantly uncertain. Enhancing the Climate Resilience of Africa 's Infrastructure evaluates -using for the first time a single consistent methodology and the state-of-the-arte climate scenarios-, the impacts of climate change on hydro-power and irrigation expansion plans in Africa's main rivers basins (Niger, Senegal, Volta, Congo, Nile, Zambezi, Orange); and outlines an approach to reduce climate risks through suitable adjustments to the planning and design process. The book finds that failure to integrate climate change in the planning and design of power and water infrastructure could entail, in scenarios of drying climate conditions, losses of hydropower revenues between 5% and 60% (depending on the basin); and increases in consumer expenditure for energy up to 3 times the corresponding baseline values. In in wet climate scenarios, business-as-usual infrastructure development could lead to foregone revenues in the range of 15% to 130% of the baseline, to the extent that the larger volume of precipitation is not used to expand the production of hydropower. Despite the large uncertainty on whether drier or wetter conditions will prevail in the future in Africa, the book finds that by modifying existing investment plans to explicitly handle the risk of large climate swings, can cut in half or more the cost that would accrue by building infrastructure on the basis of the climate of the past.

Informationskompetenz Wirtschaft Albert F. Herbig, Anette Stürmer, 2011 In einer Wissensgesellschaft wird der Umgang mit Information, das erfolgreiche Suchen, Finden, Bewerten und Dokumentieren v. a. im Internet immer wichtiger. Viele Studierende gehen mit PC und Internet einerseits völlig selbstverständlich um, pflegen aber andererseits hinsichtlich Informationsrecherche und -bewertung einen fast schon naiven Umgang mit den sich bietenden Informations- und Kommunikationsmöglichkeiten: Das Meiste wird gegoogelt oder bei Wikipedia nachgeschlagen, oft werden die erstbesten Treffer kritiklos übernommen, Quellen werden selten überprüft, das Internet selbst vielfach als Autorität angeführt. Für ein wissenschaftlich fundiertes Arbeiten an einer Hochschule reicht diese Herangehensweise bei weitem nicht aus. Das vorliegende Buch wendet sich daher an alle, die ihre Informationskompetenz weiterentwickeln und optimieren wollen, insbesondere an Studierende, die im Rahmen wissenschaftlicher Bachelor- und Masterarbeiten nach einschlägiger Information suchen. Das Buch hat folgende Themenschwerpunkte: Zunächst werden die Grundlagen wissenschaftlichen Arbeitens dargestellt (Kapitel 2): - Was bedeutet wissenschaftliches Arbeiten? - Welche Anforderungen werden an wissenschaftliches Arbeiten gestellt? - Welche Phasen wissenschaftlichen Schreibens kann man unterscheiden? Im Mittelpunkt des 3. Kapitel steht die Vorbereitung, Durchführung und Auswertung von Literatur- und Informationsrecherchen: - Welche Grundbegriffe sollte man kennen, um eine wissenschaftliche Informationsrecherche fundiert und erfolgreich durchführen zu können? - Wie wird eine Informationsrecherche optimal vorbereitet und durchgeführt? - Wie wird eine Informationsrecherche ausgewertet und dokumentiert? Kapitel 4 beschäftigt sich mit den verschiedenen Informationsquellen für betriebswirtschaftliche Fragestellungen: - Bibliotheken und Bibliotheksverbünde - Buchhandel und Verlage - Öffentliche Einrichtungen und Forschungsinstitute - Suchmaschinen - Datenbanken - Wirtschaftsp
