The author, Maria Wood, is a teacher and tutor from Melbourne, Australia.

She teaches students across all year levels in Mathematics, Biology, English and Greek. She is also a mother of two. She loved teaching her own children how to read when they were younger and wrote several Greek books in order to help them learn Greek as a second language. Other people also used these books with their children. This encouraged Maria to self-publish her books in the hope that they will help other young children to develop their language skills further. This is a fun and simple way to teach your kids how to read and understand Greek. A must have for all children learning Greek as a second language!

Computer Aided Assessment of Mathematics Chris Sangwin,2013-05-02 Assessment is a key driver in mathematics education. This book examines computer aided assessment (CAA) of mathematics in which computer algebra systems (CAS) are used to establish the mathematical properties of expressions provided by students in response to questions. In order to automate such assessment, the relevant criteria must be encoded and, in articulating precisely the desired criteria, the teacher needs to think very carefully about the goals of the task. Hence CAA acts as a vehicle to examine assessment and mathematics education in detail and from a fresh perspective. One example is how it is natural for busy teachers to set only those questions that can be marked by hand in a straightforward way, even though the constraints of paper-based formats restrict what they do and why. There are other kinds of questions, such as those with non-unique correct answers, or where assessing the properties requires the marker themselves to undertake a significant computation. It is simply not sensible for a person to set these to large groups of students when marking by hand. However, such questions have their place and value in provoking thought and learning. This book, aimed at teachers in both schools and universities, explores how, in certain cases, different question types can be automatically assessed. Case studies of existing systems have been included to illustrate this in a concrete and practical way.
