Re/Thinking Chickens: The Discourse around Chicken Farming in British Newspapers and Campaigners' Magazines, 1982 - 2016 Elena Lazutkaite,2020-10-06 Re/Thinking Chickens: The Discourse around Chicken Farming in British Newspapers and Campaigners' Magazines, 1982-2016 has major social relevance as it focuses on one of the most forgotten and yet most exploited farmed animals, chickens, who now have a combined mass exceeding that of all other birds on Earth. Dr Elena Lazutkaitė demonstrates that the planet's most numerous birds, with a population of 23 billion at any one time, are trivialised in public discourse. This book applies the analytical framework of Critical Discourse Analysis in combination with corpus linguistics tools to present a detailed empirical case study. In total, the study corpus comprises 1754 texts published over the period of 34 years in broadsheets The Guardian and The Daily Telegraph, tabloids the Daily Mirror and the Daily Mail (including their Sunday editions Sunday Mirror and Mail on Sunday) and magazines produced by animal advocacy groups Compassion In World Farming and Animal Aid. This book will be of particular interest to university students of critical animal studies, human-animal studies, discourse studies, cultural studies, communication studies, sociology, (eco)linguistics, in addition to animal advocacy groups and media practitioners.

Raising Chickens Julia Bailey,2016-04-06 Raising Chickens How to Help Your Chickens Lay More Eggs and Make Them Happy Why be concerned about maintaining your chickens content? Well, for starters, they have a tendency to struggle less together once they are content. They also have a tendency to lay eggs more regularly. Thus, happy chickens mean satisfied poultry homeowners! If you are a newcomer to raising birds, you'll be relieved to know it doesn't take much to preserve your chickens happy. Here's a listing of the top ten poultry-attractive basics: 1. Ensure that your hen coop is large enough for the amount of birds you've. Much more is not worsen, although the purpose must be at least 4 feet per hen. Cramped areas will encourage fighting among the flock. 2. Present your hen's place to roam outside the co-op (a protected hen run or a safe backyard). They require a location where they could chew, damage and search for hot treats to consume. 3. Treats. Yes, they are similar to us people. Sweets make us satisfied? Chickens are no different.

Sweets for them are several other table scraps, and viruses, pests, fruits, vegetables, bread. Most chickens also love broken corn (that you will get at the feed store once you buy chicken food) but don't binge them--too much of a very important thing can sometimes be bad. 4. New water. Keep the water great while in the summer of your poultry, and thawed in the winter.

Our Children and Other Animals Matthew Cole,Kate Stewart,2016-05-23 Focusing on the socialization of the human use of other animals as resources in contemporary Western society, this book explores the cultural reproduction of human-nonhuman animal relations in childhood. With close attention to the dominant practices through which children encounter animals and mainstream representations of animals in children's culture - whether in terms of the selective exposure of children to animals as pets or as food in the home or in school, or the representation of animals in mass media and social media - Our Children and Other Animals reveals the interconnectedness of studies of childhood, culture and human-animal relations. In doing so it establishes the importance of human-animal relations in sociology, by describing the sociological importance of animals in children's lives and children in animals' lives. Presenting a new typology of the various kinds of human-animal relationship, this conceptually innovative book constitutes a clear demonstration of the relevance of sociology to the interdisciplinary field of human-animal relations and will appeal to readers across the social sciences with interests in sociology, childhood studies, cultural and media studies and human-animal interaction.
