Risk Criticism Molly Wallace,2016-05-18 Risk Criticism is a study of literary and cultural responses to global environmental risk in an age of unfolding ecological catastrophe. In 2015, the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists reset its iconic Doomsday Clock to three minutes to midnight, as close to the apocalypse as it has been since 1953. What pushed its hands was not just the threat of nuclear weapons, but also other global environmental risks that the Bulletin judged to have risen to the scale of the nuclear, including climate change and innovations in the life sciences. If we may once have believed that the end of days would come in a blaze of nuclear firestorm, we now suspect that the apocalypse may be much slower, creeping in as chemical toxins, climate change, or nano-technologies run amok. Taking inspiration from the questions raised by the Bulletin's synecdochical "nuclear," Risk Criticism aims to generate a hybrid form of critical practice that brings "nuclear criticism" into conversation with ecocriticism. Through readings of novels, films, theater, poetry, visual art, websites, news reports, and essays, Risk Criticism tracks the diverse ways in which environmental risks are understood and represented today.

Hazardous Future Isabel Capeloa Gil,Christoph Wulf,2015-03-30 Since culture, the media and the arts deal with the perception and the processing of catastrophe, what kind of social knowledge does this process produce and how does it contribute to the sustainable development of societies? The book seeks to understand how societies and cultures deal with disaster and the rhetorical means they resort to in order to represent it. It is situated on the cusp between the response to natural catastrophe, the renewed awareness of human vulnerability in the face of environmental hazard and irresponsible policies and the social role of traditional knowledge and humanistic ideas for the preservation of human communities. It aims to be diverse, in disciplinary allegiance and cultural situation, and relevant, by bringing together articles by well-known scholars and policy makers to jointly discuss the possibilities of reframing hazard for the future, so that one may learn from restored behavior instead of repeating the mistakes of the past.

World-Wide Limits for Toxic and Hazardous Chemicals in Air, Water and Soil Marshall Sittig, 1994 This book summarizes allowable limits for over 1,100 chemicals (domestic and international) in workplace air, in ambient air, in water of various types, and in soils. It includes data from all pertinent states and 25 foreign countries and organizations. It is unique in that, for the first time in any publication, a variety of data on a specific chemical is assembled in one place. Thus, one does not have to go to a variety of obscure reference sources for such data, but can get a panoramic view of the possible hazards associated with exposure to a single chemical, under various conditions, in one place. The data in many cases are hard to obtain, not previously published, and have been assembled in a single reference source for easy use by the reader. They include recent inter-national data, checked by a visit to the United Nations information centers in Geneva, Switzerland in the months immediately before publication. They include very recent data from a variety of State agencies in the U.S.A., standards which have been established to safeguard the public health by many different agencies within the various states.
