High Lights on Auctioneering J. P. Gutelius, 2015-08-04 Excerpt from High Lights on Auctioneering: Opening Talks for Auction Sales, Giving the Actual Words and Figures and the Mode of Operation in Many of the Most Important Auction Sales in the History of the Country The main object of this book is to have you take a journey with a real, practical auctioneer, who has spent thirty-two years on the way, beginning fifteen years before auction schools were heard of, and picture to you the real battles of a beginner; the successes and failures, the sunshine and shadows, that are characteristic of any man who has an ambition to go to the top. The author of this book had wonderful experiences in thoroughbred stock sales, and remarkable success in real estate and merchandise auctions. He had the honor of being president of the International Auctioneers Association of U. S. A., Canada and Mexico, and three terms as president of the Auctioneers Association of Oklahoma. He desires to write out of his experience a book that will give the man who has an auction bee buzzing in his bonnet the shortest route to the auction block. Several times in this book he says that an auctioneer is born, not made. For several years he was president of the El Reno Auction School. There he learned this fact. When we say born, we mean that he must be naturally a man of strong personality, good judgment, and very strong lung power. The profession must be fascinating to him, and he should be a live give on general principles - clean and reliable. The reader will find several opening talks for different kinds of public sales, that the author wrote to suit many students of the El Reno Auction School, that can be used in in a sale at almost any place with only slight changes, and several of them are suitable for almost any kind of sale at any place. No part of this book is patterned after any other book; it is written right off the reel of a practical and successful career of auctioneering in six of the western states. Auction Tracker Collector Books,2000-08 Conveniently housed in a 3-ring binder, the organizer's pages help users log and preserve necessary information about their current and past auctions. Simple forms for both buyers and sellers are provided. Buying forms include places to record item number, auction site, description, minimum bid, reserve price, and shipping costs, as well as information about the seller of the item: name, address, method shipped, and feedback statistics. If you are selling items online, seller forms are also included in the same binder, with blanks for maker/brand, marks, condition, listing time & date, ending time & date, price sold for, number of bids, and sections for recording details about the buyer. This is the perfect tool for both buyers and sellers, and can be used for either traditional or online auctions. No prices. REVIEW: This book has been the #1 choice of Avon representatives and Avon collectors since 1969. Over 200 categories including Avon Representative Awards are featured, as well as what's hot and what's not in Avon collecting. This is the only complete book on the market that covers the Avon collecting hobby. - Phillip Norris

The Dynamics of Auction Christian Heath,2014-05-14 Each year art and antiques worth many billions of pounds are sold at auction. These auctions consist of numerous, intense episodes of social interaction through which the price of goods rapidly escalates until sold on the strike of a hammer. In this book, Christian Heath examines the fine details of interaction that arises at auctions, the talk and visible conduct of the participants, and their use of various tools and technologies. He explores how auctioneers, buyers and their representatives are able to transact the sale of goods worth anything from a few dollars through to many millions in just seconds. Heath addresses how order, trust, and competition are established at auctions and demonstrates how an economic institution of some global importance is founded upon embodied action and interaction. The analysis is based on video recordings of sales of art and antiques gathered within a range of national and international auction houses in Europe and the United States.

The Domain Game David Kesmodel,2008-05-20 Almost everyone has heard a tale of someone getting rich by selling an Internet domain name for a staggering price. But few understand the secretive world of domain investing, a game that a growing number of people are playing around the globe. The Domain Game chronicles the exploits of leading domain investors and explains how this mysterious market works. Learn how an Oklahoma watermelon farmer wound up owning some of the world's most valuable Web addresses, from recipes.com to chairs.com, and how a college dropout became a multimillionaire by scooping up domains that others abandoned amid the dot-com bust. Find out how the rise of Google and Yahoo has helped boost the fortunes of domain investors. And explore the shenanigans of investors who snag names associated with corporate trademarks. Finally, read how you can jump into this exciting market with a relatively small initial investment. It's a market with high risk, but huge potential reward.

World Public Sector Report 2003 ,2003 This report analyses the status of e-government in the world today, in the framework of the UN Millennium Declaration. It includes the UN Global E-government Survey 2003, with a global ranking of Member States as to their e-government readiness. Development and the existence of e-government applications do not necessarily reflect the quality of life in a country. However, treating e-government as a tool that facilitates creation of public value (i.e., things that people want) by public administration can add to this value and help human development.
