🔍 KAMLOOPS BRITISH COLUMBIA CANADA BOOK 1 IN COLOUR PHOTOS BARBARA RAUE,2019-10-08 Kamloops is a city in south central British Columbia in Canada, located at the confluence of the two branches of the Thompson River near Kamloops Lake. The first European explorer, David Stuart, arrived in 1811; he was sent out from Fort Astoria, a Pacific Fur Company post; he spent a winter there with the Secwepemc people. He and Alexander Ross established a post there in May 1812, Fort Cumcloups. The rival North West Company established another post, Fort Shuswap, nearby in the same year. The two operations were merged in 1813 when the North West Company officials in the region bought out the operations of the Pacific Fur Company. After the North West Company’s forced merger with the Hudson’s Bay Company in 1821, the post became known commonly as Thompson’s River Post, or Fort Thompson, which over time became known as Fort Kamloops. After the fur trade arrived in 1812, Kamloops became the crossroads for horse-drawn pack trains. In the years that followed, Kamloops’ reputation as a bustling locality for trade and commerce was greatly broadened by the gold rush of the 1850s, among other things. Following the arrival of the first permanent ranchers was the railway which came through in 1893; Kamloops continued to be the resting stop for the weary travelers. Kamloops has continued to grow since then with cattle ranching, forestry and mining. The gold rush of the 1860s and the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which reached Kamloops from the West in 1883, brought further growth. Pulp, plywood, veneer, cement, and a copper mine are industries in Kamloops. The Royal Inland Hospital is the city’s largest employer. Thompson River University serves a student body of 10,000.

🔍 HALLOWED GROUND IAN BROWN,2017-08 This book makes it easy with its compelling collection of stories about the people who are buried at the Yale Pioneer Cemetery, an antique burial ground “at a stopping point between Fort Langley and Fort Kamloops,” BC. Established in 1858, the Yale Cemetery offers final refuge to some 300 souls, many of them among British Columbia’s earliest pioneers, including immigrant railroad labourers who toiled and died building the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways. Here lies Dr. Maximilian Fifer, murdered in 1861 at the hands of a patient who felt the physician has mistreated him; Ned Stout, who, when he died in 1924, included Yale’s 1858 gold rush and the 1880 construction of the CPR among the memories of his 100-year lifetime; and the Elley brothers, three of at least eight children taken by scarlet fever as an epidemic tore through the town in the 1880s. As for the more than 200 unmarked graves in the Yale Cemetery, Hallowed Ground unearths their stories, too. “Yale is the focal point of our realistic and romantic history,” a passerby wrote the Yale and District Historical Society in 1980.

SETTLEMENT EXPERIENCES OF FAMILY CLASS IMMIGRANTS IN A SMALL CITY JULIE DROLET, 2011 What is the settlement experience of family class immigrants in Kamloops, British Columbia? The importance of undertaking this study lies in the settlement challenges faced by immigrants in smaller communities outside of the major metropolitan areas of Canada. It is imperative to better understand the settlement experience of family class immigrants in a smaller city. British Columbia (BC) is a large province, and settlement experiences can be very different from one community to another. From 2001 to 2006 the population of immigrants in Kamloops grew from 7945 to 8490, which translates into 545 (10.6 % of the population) new immigrants settling in the city of Kamloops (BC Stats 2006). In 2007, there were more family class immigrants who settled in Kamloops than any other class. All immigrant groups rely on health, education, and social services; and social workers play a key role in the delivery of direct and essential services. The results of the study will generate discussion and policy recommendations for government, practitioners, policymakers, and other stakeholders around issues such as the needs and settlement experiences of immigrants, credential recognition, employment and other labour market issues, as well as welcoming and inclusive community capacity issues for delivering key services in a smaller community.

GEOTOUR GUIDE FOR KAMLOOPS BRITISH COLUMBIA, 2008

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF TEXAS FOSBERY KAREN PIFFKO, 2000 In the late 1940s and 1950s, with the BC interior ripe for development, Texas Fosbery moved from breaking horses and driving cattle through the Cariboo to driving Caterpillar tractors and breaking roads through the wilds of Kitimat, Kemano, the Nass Valley and the Queen Charlotte Islands. Along the way he moiled for gold in the Yukon, worked at Hell’s Gate for the Fisheries Commission and flew small planes to isolated northern lakes. Tex lived his life to the full in a time and place where there were fewer restrictions and supports than there are today. When they got into scrapes, Tex and his brother Tony had to find their own way out. Admittedly the youngest hobos ever during the Great Depression, their rough-and-ready beginnings prepared them for years of keeping heavy equipment running with French safes and haywire, as well as surviving the freaks of weather and machinery that made bush flying in BC a hazardous occupation. Tex’s reminiscences are a fascinating and often humorous story of the early years of the British Columbia interior.

CAPRICE GEORGE BOWERING, 201-11-15 WITH A FOREWORD BY ARITHA VAN HERK It’s the mid 1890s in Kamloops, British Columbia. Two men argue over a bottle of whisky and in the struggle Frank Spencer, an American outlaw-turned-farmhand, kills Pete Foster, a French-Canadian and fellow farmhand. Enter Caprice: a vision and a brain. Almost six feet tall, with flaming red hair and long legs, and toting a lethal bullwhip, she sets out to avenge her brother’s murder. Travelling with her beloved black Spanish stallion, Caprice trails her brother’s murderer to Mexico and back. Determined and headstrong as she is smart, she leaves an impression on the people she encounters in her journey: Gert, the whore with a heart of gold; Gert’s son, for whom she provides affirmation, and not the least Frank Smith, her lover, a teacher and amateur baseball player who wants her to leave the law enforcement to the professionals and marry him. Caprice finally comes face to face with her brother’s murderer at Deadman’s Falls. First published in 1987 and based on actual events in BC’s history, Caprice is a witty, adventurous and colourful recreation of a Canadian heroine’s quest in avenging her brother’s murder, a woman well ahead of her times, who refused to be pigeonholed into a stereotype, who questioned authority and did so with unflinching resolve. Caprice is a companion to Bowering’s Burning Water and Shoot!, reissued by New Star in 2007 and 2008.
