Railtown Ethan N. Elkind,2014-01-22 The modern Los Angeles Metro Rail system resulted from the sustained efforts of local leaders, particularly with the election of Tom Bradley as mayor in 1973. Political compromises and funding pressures, however, severely weakened the effectiveness of the subway and light rail lines. Railtown presents this history by drawing on archival documents, contemporary news accounts, and interviews with many of the key players in the story to provide critical behind-the-scenes accounts of the people and forces that shaped the system. Although Metro Rail is growing in ridership and political importance, with expansions in the pipeline, Railtown argues that local leaders will need to reform the rail planning and implementation process to avoid repeating past mistakes and to ensure that Metro Rail supports a burgeoning demand for transit-oriented neighborhoods in Los Angeles--

L.A. Metro RJ Nolan,2013

La No Car M Huk,2019-06-04 Can you visit and enjoy Los Angeles without a car? YES! At one time in the early 20th Century, Los Angeles had the largest urban train transit system in the world. Then Los Angeles became the city of freeways, cars, suburbs, and smog. At the end of the 20th Century, Los Angeles citizens decided they had enough of the pollution and over-crowded roads and voted to build a mass train transit system. Today Los Angeles Metro is the third largest system in miles in the US, the eighth largest in ridership in the US, and the largest light rail system in the US. What this means for visitors and residents is that a lot -- a whole lot of L.A. -- is accessible by public mass transit, including the fabulously revitalized Downtown L.A., Hollywood, and nearby cities such as Pasadena, Long Beach, and Santa Monica. And so very much in between. From the heights of the Hollywood Hills to the Pacific Ocean and the neighborhoods of Los Angeles, readers of LA NO CAR will find out that there is so much to do, see, eat, and enjoy that not even a few weeks is enough. For International visitors, using the L.A. Metro will be a familiar and less challenging way of getting around because not everyone is ready for L.A. traffic. Yes, many of the world's city traffic and driving is challenging, but not over such a wide expanse as L.A., where it is not so much the speed as it is the slow crawl that seems to happen day and night. LA NO CAR not only make sense of visiting L.A. with the Metro system, it also saves money. L.A. Metro fares are more than reasonable, and with their TAP card system, riders have access to every other mass transit system in Los Angeles County, as well as their own expanding system of short term bicycle rentals. LA NO CAR is laid-out starting in Downtown and travels to Hollywood, North Hollywood, Highland Park, Pasadena, Long Beach and Santa Monica, all by using Metro subway, light rail, BRT, and DASH buses. Each Metro Station that is highlighted has places to visit, see, enjoy and, of course, eat and drink. (LA NO CAR confirms that L.A. is a foodie town.) Throughout LA NO CAR are QR Codes that help navigate the way from the stations and stops to featured locations, and almost all are under one mile/1.6 KM from the nearest Metro Station. Most are under a half a mile/.80 KM walk, and many are adjacent to the Metro Station. All of this proximity makes it possible to easily travel from Metro Station to Metro Station and at each stop find more than enough to enjoy. This is especially true in Downtown Los Angeles where Chinatown, Olvera Street, and Little Tokyo blend in with the Arts and Fashion Districts, as well as the cultural attractions of Bunker Hill to make a visit to Downtown a multi-day destination. All along the way is history, unexpected places, and the full flavor on one of the world's great cities. And of course, there is Hollywood where the subway has multiple stops, and most of the world famous attractions are just steps from the subway. That one of the major theme park attractions, Universal Studios Hollywood, has a subway stop steps from its free trolleys makes it easy to understand how LA NO CAR isn't some Hollywood fantasy. It is completely for real.

L. A. Metro RJ Nolan,2013-04-01 Dr. Kimberly Donovan's life is in shambles. After her medical ethics are questioned, first her family, then her closeted lover, the Chief of the ER, betray her. Determined to make a fresh start, she flees to California and L.A. Metropolitan Hospital. Dr. Jess McKenna, L.A. Metro's Chief of the ER, gives new meaning to the phrase emotionally guarded, but she has her reasons. When Kim and Jess meet, the attraction is immediate. Emotions Jess has tried to repress for years surface. But her interest in Kim also stirs dark memories. They settle for friendship, determined not to repeat past mistakes, but secretly they both wish things could be different. Will the demons from Jess's past destroy their future before it can even get started? Or will L.A. Metro be a place to not only heal the sick, but to mend wounded hearts?

Los Angeles Rail Rapid Transit Project, Metro Rail ,1983

Transport of Delight Jonathan Richmond,2005 Transport of Delight is a true interdisciplinary work, and includes a thorough analytical assessment of the Los Angeles rail program, with a focus on the Long Beach Blue Line light rail-the first of the new projects to go ahead. En route, it shows that ridership forecasting for this project was not only biased and statistically invalid, but in fact done to justify decisions made on other grounds. This unusual book develops a novel theory of myth to explain the construction of rail passenger transit in Los Angeles when it had little to offer the needs of a dispersed autopolis, whose urgent but dispersed public transportation needs could have been better served by developing the regional bus system. The author conducted interviews and performed the detective work necessary to reveal an unlikely logic that held together a network of symbols, images, and metaphors that together present powerful mythical beliefs in the guise of truth. A political analysis shows how consensus was reached to proceed with the light rail to Long Beach, but political explanations are ultimately found lacking, because they cannot explain why decision-makers would want to put the rail in place. It is only when provocative metaphors-of the need to connect communities and to restore a mythical balance to a dysfunctional transportation system-and symbols-of escape from the pressure cooker of poverty, of urban success, power and, indeed sexual acumen-are surfaced, that we realize that Los Angeles' Transport of Delight is the result of the very human need to transcend complexity by providing mythical creations that appear to offer easy answers to society's deepest problems.
