Melosina Lenox-Conyngham

Larger Than Life Cynthia Elyce Rubin,Morgan Williams,1990 Exaggeration to prove a point is the foundation of America's storytelling heritage. The photographic postcard originated as a visual format for the time-honored tall tale in the Midwest. This amusing volume on the tall-tale postcard captures many facets of life in turn-of-the-century, small-town America and vividly bears witness to a unique form of creativity. 150 illustrations.

Postcards James Prideaux,1970 For thirty years Margaret and Leonardo have sat each day at adjoining desks, writing postcards to famous people, without ever getting any answers. Having run out of live personages to write to they decide to address their cards to the famous dead -- but, suddenly, much to their consternation, a reply does arrive. Its effect is shattering, and brings on a poignant revelation of the unspoken feelings which have, through all the years, lay dormant beneath the calm surface of their very correct relationship.

Live the Life You Love Postcard Box Scott Albrecht,2012-10-09 For design enthusiasts and those who appreciate a well-phrased aphorism, Brooklyn-based artist Scotty Albrecht matches his quirky affirmations with hand-drawn typography in this original collection of 100 postcards. In the era of email and standard typefaces, the use of postcards and hand-drawn typography represents a revival in personal touches. Featuring 25 witty and inspirational hand-written aphorisms (reproduced 4 times), and housed in a kraft-paper box designed by the artist, this 100-card postcard set is a wonderful gift for craft and design enthusiasts.

A Life in Postcards Melosina Lenox-Conyngham,2013 Born a Teaplanter's daughter in Sri Lanka (then Ceylon) in 1941, and evacuated with her mother to southern Africa during the war, Melosina Lenox-Conyngham acquired early on a taste for travel and an interest in life's curiosities, qualities well illustrated in this gathering of her writings. Here be memories of school holidays spent with an aunt in Cork, the dubious pleasures of church in Carrigadrohid, the eventful history of the Cork and County Club, sketches of life in the family home in Ravensdale, County Louth, where generations of the Lenox-Conynghams have lived, in which we learn of the mystery of the magic tap and an unusual form of family funerals. Her years of service as Secretary to the Butler Society lent her expertise at rallying the clan as well as a special interest in key figures from Kilkenny local history:

A Tommy's Life in the Trenches Fergus Mackain,2016-10-15 A unique visual perspective of life in the trenches on the Western Front from the forgotten soldier-artist and Somme veteran Private Fergus Mackain who served in France 1916 to 1917.

Ada's Poems & Stories: Life's Etchings Diane Ashley,2011-06-15 Writing has always been an inseparable part of me. At first it didnt seem necessary or important to share with others. Then we bought our first PC and have been on the Internet about three years. Since then sharing has blossomed into unbelievable proportions. It is a thrill to be able to share with others. Hopes dreams and things we all wish for, such as acceptance by fellow writers. I can not think of one single thing that inspires me to write poetry. The entire spectrum of living is an inspiration. I feel extremely passionate about life with all its complexities. Ive always thrown myself head long into every project I tackle. Intensity serves me well by capturing the moment, fresh and captivating. The results get me into to trouble at times in that I loose all concept of time. Here I bow to my husband and his patience for many late dinners when in the middle of a writing frenzy. Endless miracles of love spur me on! Unfortunately, in late 2001, ADA was diagnosed with stage 4 Ovarian Cancer. She indured five major operations, & 38 Kemos. On July 4, 2004 she passed away at our home in Banning Ca.

My Life with Bonnie and Clyde Blanche Caldwell Barrow,2012-10-08 Bonnie and Clyde were responsible for multiple murders and countless robberies. But they did not act alone. In 1933, during their infamous run from the law, Bonnie and Clyde were joined by Clyde's brother Buck Barrow and his wife Blanche. Of these four accomplices, only one—Blanche Caldwell Barrow—lived beyond early adulthood and only Blanche left behind a written account of their escapades. Edited by outlaw expert John Neal Phillips, Blanche's previously unknown memoir is here available for the first time. Blanche wrote her memoir between 1933 and 1939, while serving time at the Missouri State Penitentiary. Following her death, Blanche's good friend and the executor of her will, Esther L. Weiser, found the memoir wrapped in a large unused Christmas card. Later she entrusted it to Phillips, who had interviewed Blanche several times before her death. Drawing from these interviews, and from extensive research into Depression-era outlaw history, Phillips supplements the memoir with helpful notes and with biographical information about Blanche and her accomplices.

Quality of Life in Old Age Heidrun Mollenkopf,Alan Walker,2007-06-13 This volume brings together leading researchers on quality of life in old age to focus on one of the most important issues in both gerontology and quality of life studies. There are very few texts available on this topic and none of an international and multi-disciplinary nature. For these reasons and the high quality of the authors we have assembled, this will be a seminal text for both gerontology and quality of life researchers.

Postcard Wars Pauline Yu,Guenevere Blanchard,2020-03-17 As with all epistolary novels... the diary, the letters, or in this case the postcards are the stars. Some readers study the pictures on the front of the cards, then read the original captions on the back, you know the ones intending to describe the purpose of the postcard. Then some readers start the book again from the beginning, and just read the hand written volley of artillery that is sent back and forth by each waring faction. And often on the third pass, a reader will simply focus on the little story about the troubled and loquacious Clarke the Mailman. Whatever method you choose, get on with it and we will see you at the mailbox
