The Knowland Retribution Richard Greener, 2011-07-08 With tainted meat the weapon and corporate greed the motive, The Knowland Retribution is an extremely topical suspense-revenge thriller. Walter Sherman, a/k/a the Locator, is a tracker who honed his skills in Vietnam. The colorful cast of characters also includes Sherman's two friends--a bartender with a mysterious past and an old black man who smokes like a chimney; a feisty young woman who writes obituaries for the New York Times; a southern lawyer who has lost everything and has only one thing to live for; and a group of Wall Street investment bankers who make a deadly decision. The action takes the reader from a tiny Caribbean bar on the island of St. John to the editorial boardroom of the New York Times, from the gleaming skyline of Atlanta to the isolation of northern New Mexico, from Adirondack hideouts to Manhattan suites to Mississippi backwoods. This complex and compelling mystery thriller is the first in a series featuring Walter Sherman as the Locator.

SUMMARY - Location Is (Still) Everything: The Surprising Influence Of The Real World On How We Search, Shop, And Sell In The Virtual One By David R. Bell Shortcut Edition, 2021-06-18 * Our summary is short, simple and pragmatic. It allows you to have the essential ideas of a big book in less than 30 minutes. By reading this summary, you will discover the influence (sometimes counter-intuitive) that the real world has on how to search, buy and sell in the virtual world. You will also discover : why online shoppers have overlapping behaviors; why geographically distant buyers sometimes show strong similarities; why people who are different from their environment make high-potential buyers; the importance of sharing information offline about the growth of online business; how to use this knowledge to create a high-performing online business. According to Location Is (Still) Everything, a user's online activity is driven by their geographic location. There are three findings that justify the interest in location. First, two people living in different conditions and environments move in the virtual world in different ways, even if they are the same age, have the same salary and the same level of education. Secondly, a salesman will be more or less attractive to the customer depending on the distance between them. A natural offline effect, where the distance that separates the seller from the customer corresponds to the distance the customer has to travel to make his purchases. What is more counter-intuitive is that it exists online as well: a notice will be more or less important depending on where it comes from and buyers will be more inclined to make transactions with sellers who are located near them. This effect is reinforced by the cell phone: buyers are even less willing to travel when doing their research. Third, buying preferences and behavior are almost determined by where the customers live. What are the underlying origins of these real-world effects on how people search, buy and sell in the virtual world? *Buy now the summary of this book for the modest price of a cup of coffee!
