R Bogdan

My Aunt Margaret's Mirror Walter Scott, 1999 'The Douglas Cause in its own days excited everybody as the Tichborne Trial did in later times. Lord Dundonald told the Duke of Douglas that Lady Stair held certain views. Let him be thought 'a damned villain' if he spoke not the truth. Lady Stair was equal to the occasion. She proceeded to Holyrood in full state, and in presence of the Duke and all his satellites she smote the floor with her staff three times, and each time gave the Earl, with the utmost of emphasis, the name he had craved. Scott's story of My Aunt Margaret's Mirror is founded on this Lady Stair tradition.' -- electricscotla.

My Aunt Margaret's Mirror and Other Tales Walter Scott, 2006-12-01 Sir Walter Scott was, in his lifetime, a prodigiously prolific writer; many of his novels (like these tales at hand, and also like the fondly-remembered Ivanhoe) were set in the very Scottish counties where Scott lived. Collected in this volume are three eerie supernatural Gothic tales: My Aunt Margaret's Mirror -- the tale of a superstitious woman who fears the sight of herself in mirrors, because she's certain she'll see apparitions there; The Tapestryed Chamber, and Death of the Laird's Jock.

Walter Scott - My Aunt Margaret's Mirror Walter Scott, 2020-11-23 Sir Walter Scott, in full Sir Walter Scott, 1st Baronet, (born August 15, 1771, Edinburgh, Scotland--died September 21, 1832, Abbotsford, Roxburgh, Scotland), Scottish novelist, poet, historian, and biographer who is often considered both the inventor and the greatest practitioner of the historical novel. Includes a biography of the author.

The Keepsake Stories Walter Scott, 1900 Scott's The Keepsake Stories were first published in The Keepsake, an annual literary journal in 1829. The stories include My Aunt Margaret's Mirror, The Tapestryed Chamber and Death of the Laird's Jock. This volume also contains Scott's Chronicles of Canongate.

My Aunt Margaret's Mirror Walter Scott, 2020-10-26 You are fond (said my aunt) of sketches of the society which has passed away. I wish I could describe to you Sir Philip Forester, the chartered libertine of Scottish good company, about the end of the last century. I never saw him indeed; but my mother's traditions were full of his wit, gallantry, and dissipation. This gay knight flourished about the end of the seventeenth and beginning of the eighteenth century. He was the Sir Charles Easy and the Lovelace of his day and country--renowned for the number of duels he had fought, and the successful intrigues which he had carried on. The supremacy which he had attained in the fashionable world was absolute; and when we combine it with one or two anecdotes, for which, if laws were made for every degree, he ought certainly to have been hanged, the popularity of such a person really serves to show, either that the present times are much more decent, if not more virtuous, than they formerly were, or that high-breeding then was of more difficult attainment than that which is now so called, and consequently entitled the successful professor to a proportional degree of plenary indulgences and privileges. No beau of this day could have borne out so ugly a story as that of Pretty Peggy Grindstone, the miller's daughter at Sillermills--it had well-nigh made work for the Lord Advocate. But it hurt Sir Philip Forester no more than the hail hurts the hearthstone. He was as well received in society as ever, and dined with the Duke of A---- the day the poor girl was buried. She died of heartbreak. But that has nothing to do with my story.

The Keepsake Stories - "My Aunt Margaret's Mirror", "Death of the Laird's Jack", and "The Tapestryed Chamber." Walter Scott, 189?

The Keepsake Stories Sir Walter Scott, 2015-12-16 The Keepsake Stories is the title given to 3 short stories by Sir Walter Scott which appeared in The Keepsake For 1829, a literary annual published for Christmas 1828. The short stories were entitled My Aunt Margaret's Mirror, The Tapestryed Chamber (or, The Lady in the Sacque), and Death of the Laird's Jock. My Aunt Margaret's Mirror: Sir Philip, who had married for money and quarrelled with his brother-in-law, determined on the declaration of war in 1702 to join the Duke of Marlborough's army in Flanders as a volunteer. Receiving no tidings of him for many months, Lady Jemima resolved to consult a doctor from Padua, who had the reputation of being able to show his visitors their absent friends, and what they were doing. Accordingly she and her sister, disguised as soldiers' wives, went to him secretly, when he at once told them their real names and the information they desired. The Tapestryed Chamber or, The Lady in the Sacque: This is a ghost story. While travelling through the western counties, the general's attention was attracted by a picturesquely situated old castle, and, on inquiry at the inn where he changed horses, he learnt that its owner was a nobleman who had been his schoolfellow. He accordingly determined to call upon his lordship; and, having been persuaded to be his guest for a week, he was conducted at bedtime to an old-fashioned room, hung with tapestry, but comfortably furnished, and well lighted by two large candles and a blazing fire. Death of the Laird's Jock: Armstrong had been known during his father's lifetime as the Laird's Jock, or son; and being possessed of great strength and courage, had distinguished himself in the use of a two-handed sword, bequeathed to him by a Saxon outlaw, in many of the single combats which took place between the English and Scottish borderers during the reign of Queen Elizabeth.
