Crazy Love You Lisa Unger, 2015-02-10 In the New York Times bestselling Jones Cooper series by Lisa Unger, falling in love should be a dream but sometimes it's a living nightmare in this "haunting, compulsive tale that will have you under its spell long after you've closed the book" (Tess Gerritsen, New York Times bestselling author). Darkness has a way of finding Ian when he is with Priss. Even when they were kids, playing in the woods of their small upstate New York town, he could feel it. Still, Priss was his best friend, his salvation from the bullies who teased him mercilessly and from his family's deadly secrets. Now that they've both escaped to New York City, Ian is no longer the tortured victim. He is a talented and successful graphic novelist, and Priss...Priss is still trouble. The booze, the drugs, the sex—Ian is growing tired of late nights together trying to forget the past. Especially now that he's met sweet, beautiful Megan, whose love makes him want to change for the better. But Priss doesn't like change. Change makes her angry. And when Priss is angry, terrible things begin to happen...

Rejected Jon Friedman, 2009-01-27 Besides being born and dying, the most common human experience is being rejected—dissed, dumped on, or downsized—by lovers, parents, and employers. Now here's a hilarious collection of rejection stories—and rejected works—by some of today's most accomplished comic writers and performers (some world famous) sharing their pieces that were ripped to pieces and their own experiences of being handed their hats, heads, and hearts on a platter. • Bob Witfong recalls being hired as a correspondent by The Daily Show but never called in to work; then being fired by mistake; then going on air and called "creepy" by bloggers; and then actually being fired. • Meredith Hoffa has her pubescent crush destroyed by a new haircut modeled on Mary Stuart Masterson's in Some Kind of Wonderful just when "the size of my face and body had caught up to the gigantic size of my teeth." • Joel Stein (celebrity interviewer for Time) receives an earful from Buddy Hackett who, before slamming down the phone, says: "You're being kind of, what do you call it, I don't know, those wise-guy papers? Tabloids." • Dave Hill offers his piece for a British "lad" mag in which he went undercover with a police vice squad, an article killed because he didn't go "far enough" with a transvestite prostitute. • Jackie Cohen fails her audition for the synagogue choir—at age five. And many more too painful to mention. Featuring essays, jokes, sketches, cartoons, and articles passed on by venues as varied as Saturday Night Live and Reader's Digest, Rejected is a priceless compilation that reminds us it's a-okay to be a big loser.

Alexia in 10th Mile Vijayalakshmi Babukumar, 2024-02-15 What do you do when everything you have lived for is suddenly snatched from you? When your city is destroyed and your friends brutally slaughtered? When the benevolent queen you have grown up serving dies fighting to save the future of her tribe? When half your tribe's children are kidnapped and forced into slavery? When you are left with just a handful of terrified adults and bewildered kids -- including the very young crown princess who is now your responsibility? When you suddenly become the only hope for survival for the pitifully small remnants of your tribe? Do you break down and cry -- or do you focus on solutions? Do you collapse under the unbearable burden -- or do you gird yourself up for the enormous challenges facing your people in an uncertain and often hostile new world? Those are the situations and questions that Alexia faces as she stands at the crossroads of existence. Destruction and tragedy are behind her, desperation and determination lie ahead, as the war-weary survivors of Tribe Mran look to her for guidance, answers and hope. Will she measure up to their expectations and lead them out of this maze of fear and despair? Or will even her best efforts fail, and her tribe wiped off the face of the earth? This is the story of Alexia's incredible journey from the ordinary to the exceptional, from complacent comfort to a do-or-die situation, from panic to peace, and from the old world-order to a totally unfamiliar way of life. Her personal growth is complemented by the growth of her tribe's understanding of the total interdependency of every species that exists on earth...
