Do Large Modern Retailers Pay Premium Wages? Brianna Cardiff-Hicks, Francine Lafontaine, Kathryn L. Shaw, National Bureau of Economic Research, 2014 With malls, franchise strips and big-box retailers increasingly dotting the landscape, there is concern that middle-class jobs in manufacturing in the U.S. are being replaced by minimum wage jobs in retail. Retail jobs have spread, while manufacturing jobs have shrunk in number. In this paper, we characterize the wages that have accompanied the growth in retail. We show that wage rates in the retail sector rise markedly with firm size and with establishment size. These increases are halved when we control for worker fixed effects, suggesting that there is sorting of better workers into larger firms. Also, higher ability workers get promoted to the position of manager, which is associated with higher pay. We conclude that the growth in modern retail, characterized by larger chains of larger establishments with more levels of hierarchy, is raising wage rates relative to traditional mom-and-pop retail stores.

Competitive Advantage of an ABC Retail Firm Mutinda Jackson, 2018-07-11 Academic Paper from the year 2018 in the subject Business economics - Marketing, Corporate Communication, CRM, Market Research, Social Media, grade: 95.4%, Kenyatta University, course: Business Management, language: English, abstract: Notably, once it comes to employees' payment, Human Resource managers face an intriguing challenge; the challenge of offering competitive salaries so as to attract qualified talent alongside retaining it, without harming the bottom line. Luckily, the competitive pay practice (a common-sense way of setting salaries), has been observed to be an easy process that is quite imperative in any business. The development of any competitive pay policy requires reviewing of the firm's inside job descriptions along with their respective salaries; then comparing them to analogous positions of different organizations. In this sense, the employer may determine what he/she would be paying his/her workers by obtaining salary data from other organizations or even from public sources. Therefore, as the ABC Retail HR manager, which is an independent retail firm, I will develop a competitive pay policy for ABC Retail Company that will sustain the company's strategic goal of increasing its market share to 20% by 2019 in the St. Louis area. It is significant to note that according to a 2015 survey, the market share of this company in St. Louis area was 17.8%, facing a stiff competition from Target and Kohls. ABC Retail has ten stores, with each store comprising of one store manager, 3 assistant store managers, 15 department managers, 20 shift leaders, 150 associates, not to mention that each store contains a total of 149 employees when fully staffed.

Contribution Based Pay Gwen E. Torkelson, 2001-07 Contribution Based Pay combines results-oriented performance and competency-based pay in one customer-focused, strategically oriented compensation system. This system helps you: * Focus performance and rewards on serving the customer, not on performing tasks. * Align pay with increasing skill and delivering performance. * Maintain competitive advantage by building and managing core skills and capabilities. * Focus training efforts making them cost effective and measurable. * Keep pay competitive using competitor-focused survey techniques.
