Jutrída Chinny Aranol,2022-02-03 Jutrída is a woman in sorrow and pain. She was born in Nigeria to a Christian, relatively affluent parents but married very young at age 19 into a polygamous pagan family. She had not thought of marriage when her parents gave her away to a post war veteran almost twice her age. Her husband's very queer behaviors including gross infidelity and lack of interest nor involvement in his family affairs caused Jutrída so much sorrows and pain all through the marriage. Events that occurred before her husband's death, during the burial/funeral ceremonies and all the very queer incidents that occurred during the course of their marriage caused so much fear on Jutrída even after the death of the husband. She never told anyone because the husband made her promise never to tell anybody, but she now very much longed to open up. She derived the inspiration to at least put the issues down in writing after listening to Oprah Winfrey's Super soul programs especially her interview with Tyler Perry. Putting the problems down in writing gave her some relief and compiling it into a readable manuscript has brought almost a complete cure as someone out there might have answers to her troubling questions.

Graph Design for the Eye and Mind Stephen Michael Kosslyn,2006-08-10 Graphs have become a fixture of everyday life, used in scientific and business publications, in magazines and newspapers, on television, on billboards, and even on cereal boxes. Nonetheless, surprisingly few graphs communicate effectively, and most graphs fail because they do not take into account the goals, needs, and abilities of the viewers. In raph Design for Eye and Mind, Stephen Kosslyn addresses these problems by presenting eight psychological principles for constructing effective graphs. Each principle is solidly rooted both in the scientific literature on how we perceive and comprehend graphs and in general facts about how our eyes and brains process visual information. Kosslyn then uses these eight psychological principles as the basis for hundreds of specific recommendations that serve as a concrete, step-by-step guide to deciding whether a graph is an appropriate display to use, choosing the correct type of graph for a specific type of data and message, and then constructing graphs that will be understood at a glance. Kosslyn also includes a complete review of the scientific literature on graph perception and comprehension, and appendices that provide a quick tutorial on basic statistics and a checklist for evaluating computer-graphics programs. Graph Design for Eye and Mind is an invaluable reference for anyone who uses visual displays to convey information in the sciences, humanities, and businesses such as finance, marketing, and advertising.

Evaluation and Decision Models Denis Bouyssou,Thierry Marchant,Marc Pirlot,Patrice Perny,Alexis Tsoukias,P. Vincke,2012-12-06 1. 1 Motivations Deciding is a very complex and difficult task. Some people even argue that our ability to make decisions in complex situations is the main feature that distinguishes us from animals (it is also common to say that laughing is the main difference). Nevertheless, when the task is too complex or the interests at stake are too important, it quite often happens that we do not know or we are not sure what to decide and, in many instances, we resort to a decision support technique: an informal one-we toss a coin, we ask an oracle, we visit an astrologer, we consult an expert, we think-or a formal one. Although informal decision support techniques can be of interest, in this book, we will focus on formal ones. Among the latter, we find some well-known decision support techniques: cost-benefit analysis, multiple criteria decision analysis, decision trees, . . . But there are many other ones, sometimes not presented as decision support techniques, that help making decisions. Let us cite but a few examples. • When the director of a school must decide whether a given student will pass or fail, he usually asks each teacher to assess the merits of the student by means of a grade. The director then sums the grades and compares the result to a threshold. • When a bank must decide whether a given client will obtain a credit or not, a technique, called credit scoring, is often used.
