Criminal History Records and Background Checks Brian Wilkins,2015 There is widespread interest in obtaining access to criminal history record information from reliable sources for the purpose of screening an individual's suitability for employment, licensing, or placement in positions of trust. The interest is based on a desire or perceived need to evaluate the risk of hiring or placing someone with a criminal record in particular positions and is intended to protect employees, customers, vulnerable persons, and business assets. Employers and organizations are subject to potential liability under negligent hiring doctrines if they fail to exercise due diligence in determining whether an applicant has a criminal history that is relevant to the responsibilities of a job and determining whether placement of the individual in the position would create an unreasonable risk to other employees or the public. This book addresses to what extent states conduct FBI record checks for selected employment sectors and face any challenges; states have improved the completeness of records, and remaining challenges that federal agencies can help mitigate; and private companies conduct criminal record checks, the benefits those checks provide to employers, and any related challenges.

Boxed Into a Corner Mariah L Daly,2020-07-13 Between 70 and 100 million adults have a criminal record of some kind that are revealed by criminal background checks. One of the most severe and pervasive collateral consequences is difficulty securing gainful employment. Ban-the-Box reform is crucial as a starting point for fair chance hiring, especially in the age of rapidly developing technology and the largely unfettered ability to get information. The availability of criminal records has functioned less as a public safety precaution and more like a scarlet letter branded on the chest of millions Americans. Demanding unnecessary disclosure of criminal records before a conditional job offer hinders reintegration, increases recidivism, jeopardizes public safety, sabotages the economy, affronts human dignity, and causes devastating harm to society overall. This paper argues that Ban-the-Box laws should be expanded and made uniform across jurisdictions to help prevent against unjust discrimination based on criminal record. The vast differences in the levels of protection provided across Ban-the-Box jurisdictions and their shortcomings are analyzed and model Ban-the-Box legislation that incorporates concepts from the most protective existing laws is proposed.

National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS), 2018 Operations Report U. S. Department U.S. Department of Justice,Federal Bureau Federal Bureau of Investigation,2019-08-12 The National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) Section of the FBI's Criminal Justice Information Services Division has processed firearm background checks since its inception-- November 30, 1998. During that time, the FBI has identified, developed, and implemented improvements to support the NICS Section's mission of enhancing national security and public safety.The National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) celebrated its 20th Anniversary on November 30, 2018. This milestone represents a program and system that is strong rooted with experience. It is extremely reliable with a 99% availability rate nearly every year. In addition, the management of the volume, which has drastically jumped and increased over the years, proves the fortitude with which this program is based, dedicated to the mission. The past 20 years have brought excitement, increased volume, increased personnel, policy and procedure changes, modifications to the laws, and lasting professional relationships. In addition, as we celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the NICS, another milestone was achieved in Calendar Year (CY) 2018 as we surpassed the 300 millionth NICS transaction. The success of the NICS Section over the years is a result of the hard work from our employees and our state partners. The focus of the FBI Criminal Justice Information Services Division's NICS Section remains on servicing Federal Firearms Licensees (FFL) by conducting firearm background checks. In CY 2018, the NICS processed 26,181,936 firearm background checks. Because servicing the FFLs is a priority of the NICS Section, the NICS Section markets the NICS E-Check to FFLs as an opportunity to conduct firearm background checks electronically as an alternative to telephonically. The enrollment has grown each year as the FFLs realize the benefits of the electronic access. In CY 2018, the usage of the NICS E-Check continued to be the preferred choice of access by FFLs, as 81 percent of federal background checks were processed electronically.
