The Civilizing Mission in the Metropole Amelia H. Lyons, 2013-11-13 France, which has the largest Muslim minority community in Europe, has been in the news in recent years because of perceptions that Muslims have not integrated into French society. The Civilizing Mission in the Metropole explores the roots of these debates through an examination of the history of social welfare programs for Algerian migrants from the end of World War II until Algeria gained independence in 1962. After its colonization in 1830, Algeria fought a bloody war of decolonization against France, as France desperately fought to maintain control over its most prized imperial possession. In the midst of this violence, some 350,000 Algerians settled in France. This study examines the complex and often-contradictory goals of a welfare network that sought to provide services and monitor Algerian migrants' activities. Lyons particularly highlights family settlement and the central place Algerian women held in French efforts to transform the settled community. Lyons questions myths about Algerian immigration history and exposes numerous paradoxes surrounding the fraught relationship between France and Algeria—many of which echo in French debates about Muslims today.

Decolonization and the French of Algeria Sung-Eun Choi, 2016-01-26 In 1962, almost one million people were evacuated from Algeria. France called these citizens Repatriates to hide their French Algerian origins and to integrate them into society. This book is about Repatriation and how it became central to France's postcolonial understanding of decolonization, the Algerian past, and French identity.

France's Long Reconstruction Herrick Chapman, 2018-01-08 Postwar recovery required a transformation of France, but what form it should take remained a question. Herrick Chapman charts the course of France's reconstruction from 1944 to 1962, offering insights into the ways the expansion of state power produced fierce controversies at home and unintended consequences abroad in France's crumbling empire.

Paris 1961 Jim House, Neil MacMaster, 2006-09-28 For decades knowledge of the 1961 massacre of Algerian demonstrators by the Paris police was suppressed. This study investigates the roots of this violence within the colonial system and how the event was covered up until it resurfaced after the 1980s to become one of the most controversial issues in contemporary French politics.

Writing imperial histories Andrew S. Thompson, 2016-05-16 This book appraises the critical contribution of the Studies in Imperialism series to the writing of imperial histories as the series passes its 100th publication. The volume brings together some of the most distinguished scholars writing today to explore the major intellectual trends in Imperial history, with a particular focus on the cultural readings of empire that have flourished over the last generation. When the Studies in Imperialism series was founded, the discipline of Imperial history was at what was probably its lowest ebb. A quarter of a century on, there has been a tremendous broadening of the scope of what the study of empire encompasses. Essays in the volume consider ways in which the series and the wider historiography have sought to reconnect British and imperial histories; to lay bare the cultural expressions and registers of colonial power; and to explore the variety of experiences the home population derived from the empire.

The Rise and Fall of Modern Empires, Volume IV Martin Shipway, 2016-12-05 The collection of essays in this volume offers an overview of scholarly approaches to the ways in which diverse actors, representing the colonised or the colonising nations, or indeed the international community, reacted to colonialism during the lifetime of the modern colonial empires or in their aftermath. The coverage is broad in terms of geographical scope and historical period, with articles on the major colonial empires in Asia and Africa and the imperial centres of Paris, London and Berlin, from the conquests of the late nineteenth century to the period of decolonisation. The selection also reflects recent academic trends by focusing on countries whose colonial past and experience of decolonisation have been studied and debated with particular intensity, such as Algeria, Kenya and India. The volume draws on previously published articles and book chapters by leading international scholars writing in, or translated into, English and includes a critical introduction which situates each essay in relation to recent debates in this dynamic and expanding field of study.

The Yaws Handbook of Vapor Pressure Carl L. Yaws,2015-03-12 Increased to include over 25,000 organic and inorganic compounds, The Yaws Handbook of Vapor Pressure: Antoine Coefficients, 2nd Edition delivers the most comprehensive and practical database source for today's petrochemical. Understanding antoine coefficients for vapor pressure leads to numerous critical engineering applications such as pure components in storage vessels, pressure relief valve design, flammability limits at the refinery, as well as environmental emissions from exposed liquids, making data to efficiently calculate these daily challenges a fundamental need. Written by the world's leading authority on chemical and petrochemical data, The Yaws Handbook of Vapor Pressure simplifies the guesswork for the engineer and reinforces the credibility of the engineer's calculations with a single trust-worthy source. This data book is a must-have for the engineer's library bookshelf. Increase compound coverage from 8,200 to over 25,000 organic and inorganic compounds, including sulfur and hydrocarbons Solve process design questions quickly from a single reliable data source Locate answers easily for multiple petrochemical related questions such as bubble point, dew point temperatures, and vapor-liquid equilibrium

La France immigrée Vincent Viet,2014-04-01 La France immigrée s'est faite dans la douleur, la violence et les fantasmes, au rythme de son développement économique, de ses besoins démographiques et des tragédies qui ont façonné son histoire depuis un siècle. Entre les enracinés , qui pouvaient être Français ou étrangers, et les déracinés originaires de l'empire colonial français ou des pays européens voisins, la nécessité de construire une politique d'immigration et de régulation de la présence étrangère s'est tôt fait sentir. S'il existe assurément des formes de régulation spontanées qui ne laissent guère de traces, il en est d'autres qui impliquent des institutions ou des structures. Ce furent celles qui, nées à des moments différents, se donnèrent mission d'insérer des populations de culture hétérogène, sans qu'il en résulte pour la population nationale des retombées négatives. Faire en sorte que nationaux et étrangers vivent en bonne intelligence, se trouvent ou se forment, malgré leurs différences, des références communes, serait ainsi l'une des constantes de la politique française d'immigration. Mais comment éviter que cette intelligence, garante d'une certaine cohésion nationale, se transforme en rejet ou en concurrence ? Derrière cette interrogation séculaire, que d'appréhensions, d'ambiguïtés et de combinaisons possibles pour inventer un vivre ensemble et gérer les relations d'interdépendance entre population étrangère de France et la population de France ! Comment les frontières entre ces deux populations ont-elles évolué ? À partir d'une analyse minutieuse des procédures, des rouages administratifs, Vincent Viet retrace la construction, la Première Guerre mondiale, d'une politique d'immigration que l'histoire n'a en fait jamais cessé de déborder. Diplômé de l'Institut d'études politiques de Paris et docteur en histoire, Vincent Viet s'est spécialisé dans l'histoire des administrations à vocation sociale. Il est aujourd'hui chercheur associé à l'Institut d'histoire du temps présent (CNRS).
